RAF AGAIN BLASTS AT ESSEN

Cloudburst Leaves Heavy Crop Damage

STORM SKIPS CITY, STRIKES RURAL AREAS

Ontario, Lexington and Lucas Sections Hit Hard By Heavy Rain and Wind.

SOME FEARED TORNADO

Hail Size of Walnuts Ruins Garden, Field Crops; More Showers Forecast.

A storm of cloudburst proportions left widespread damage to crops and trees in western and southern Richland county late Tuesday, bringing temporary relief from four days of oppressive heat.

Striking first in the area between Ontario and Galion, the storm followed a southeastward path through Lexington and Bellville and then veered northward to Lucas. Mansfield escaped the major part of the storm.

Fields and roads were flooded across the southern half of the county as torrents of rain fell for nearly 30 minutes. Violent wind tore large branches from trees west and south of the city, blocking traffic in some cases.

Residents of the Lexington community said hail stones nearly as large as walnuts fell there, damaging garden and field crops.

It was the second consecutive night that Bellville was hit by a severe storm. Lightning was severe last night in that area, but no damage to buildings was reported. Heavy rain fell in the village Monday night as Mansfield escaped with a light shower.

Mansfielders watched the storm's approach with apprehension last night as the dense clouds rolling out of the west shrouded the city in semi-darkness about 5:30 p. m. Automobile headlights and lights in stores and homes were turned on. The storm struck the county areas with full force shortly after 5:30, skirting the southern edge of Mansfield.

Older residents of the city said the clouds were among the worst they ever saw. Fluffy white clouds that scurried across the sky ahead of the storm clouds indicated that there was heavy wind in the storm, observers said, and some feared a tornado was about to sweep down on the city.

There was no wind damage in Mansfield, however, and rainfall here totaled only .11 of an inch.

Insurance on Old Flusher Develops City Hall Mystery

Mansfield's 16-year-old street flusher today apparently had returned to its obscurity as a piece of obsolete street equipment following a day which saw preparations started for obtaining fire, theft, and other insurance on the antiquated vehicle.

The legislation prepared yesterday for submission to council, asking authorization to purchase such insurance, had disappeared in some unexplained fashion by the time council started its meeting last night.

Leslie K. Wagner, city solicitor, who prepared the legislation, was unable to shed any light on the disappearance. Clerk of Council R. R. Black, in whose office the legislation reposed after it was prepared, said he

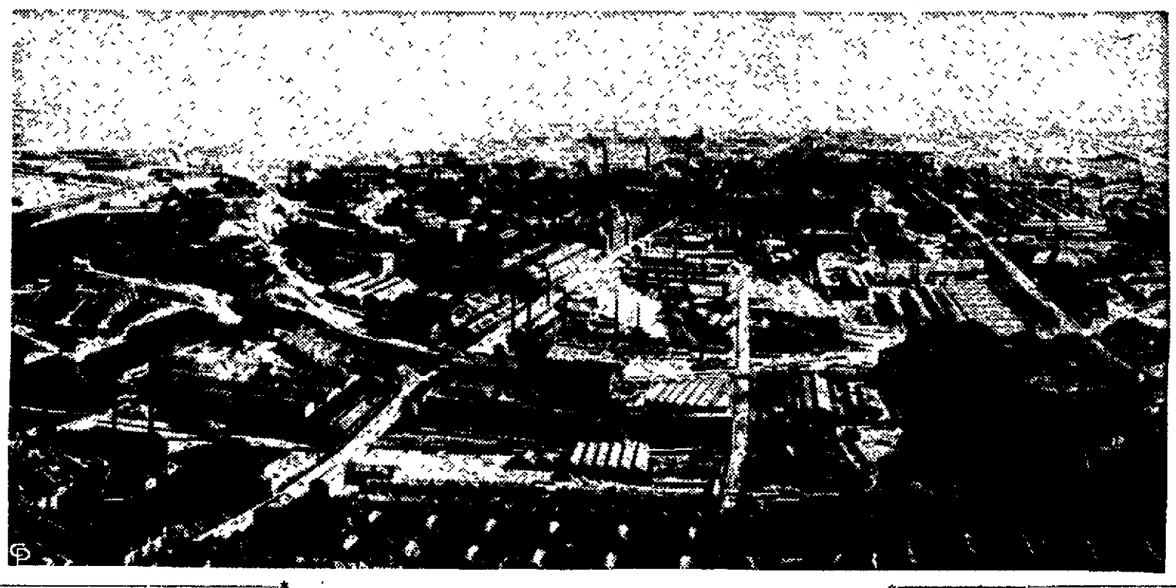
Lochner Series on Germany Begins Today

One of the most important "fronts" of the war today lies inside Nazi Germany. Louis P. Lochner, American newspaperman who for many years was head of the Associated Press Bureau in Berlin and who has just returned to the United States after five months internment at Bad Nauheim, knows this internal front thoroughly. Beginning today he writes for The News-Journal a series of factual stories on German conditions. They contain data which could not be released before Lochner's return to the United States. The first story is on Page 8.

British Score on Axis In New Essen Raid, Libya Thrust



GETS STORY OF INMATE MURDER

Lutz Questions Other O. S. R. Prisoners on Stabbing In Cell Block Corridor.

Preparatory to filing of charges, Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz today questioned Ohio State Reformatory inmates concerning the stabbing at the institution Monday night in which Charles Dickerson, 31, was killed.

Lutz indicated he would place charges tonight against Ernest Moore, 19, who is held at Richland county jail. The prosecutor yesterday questioned Moore at length, and later took statements from reformatory guards.

Purpose of his questioning of other inmates today was to learn their version of the stabbing episode, and to investigate the background of the ill feeling between the two inmates. Lutz said Moore told him he thought that Dickerson was "ratting" on him with reformatory guards.

Dickerson was stabbed 13 times with a weapon which had been fashioned from one blade of a pair of scissors taken from the reformatory tailor shop.

The fight took place in a cellblock corridor, while the inmates were filing back from the mess hall to their cells. Moore was disarmed by guards after the stabbing.

Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke of the reformatory reported Dickerson's body was being sent to Junction City, O., where the man's mother, Mrs. Ethel Middaugh, resides.

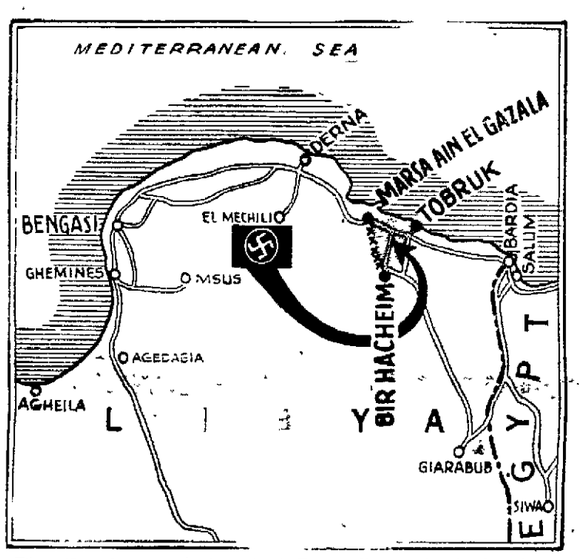
192 GALLONS

That's Ration For 'Average' Drivers, Says Report.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Motorists who cannot claim their driving is essential will get ration books good for 192 gallons of gasoline a year under the nationwide rationing program reportedly being considered in Washington, according to a story today in National Petroleum News.

The paper said its information came from Joel Dean, head of the fuel rationing section of the office of price administration.

Non-essential motorists would be issued class A ration books containing 48 coupons, each coupon good for four gallons of gasoline, the paper said. War production workers and others in class B would receive 48-coupon books also, but would be given supplementary three-month rations of 16 coupons in addition, according to the reported plan.



The British scored heavily against the Axis today as 300 RAF planes made a wide sweep over the Nazi-held coast of France and Holland to put finishing touches on Monday night's destructive raid against Essen. The giant Krupp armament works, shown in the top photo, and other industrial targets were given a new baptism of fire. In Libya where Gen. Erwin Rommel's mechanized columns had thrust at Tobruk in a wide circling move, as shown in the map below, the British kept a large part of the enemy bottled in the triangler area between El Gazala, Bir Hachiem and Tobrum. Meanwhile a task force swept westward, circling the enemy, and capturing a Nazi stronghold thirty miles west of the main battlefront.

Chief Checks Cincinnati to Solve Clothing Thefts Here

Hopeful that the arrest of four suspects in a clothing theft ring operating in three states may lead to solution of the May 12 robbery of two Mansfield clothing stores, Police Chief Thomas J. Bell today attempted to learn through Cincinnati police whether the men in custody operated in this area.

Chief Bell wrote to Cincinnati authorities inquiring whether there was a possibility that the ring which was broken up there had staged the Mansfield robberies. The two stores—Brook's Quality Apparel shop and Komito's Clothes store, were looted of 275 suits valued at $7,500.

Chief Bell said he was prepared to send an investigator to Cincinnati if police in that city indicate there may have been a connection in the cases.

FIRST REPORT

$700 Raised on Opening Day of County USO Drive.

The opening day of the Richland county USO campaign for a $22,000 war fund produced $700 yesterday, early reports showed.

Only a small part of the 600 workers who will participate in the campaign started their work yesterday and pre-campaign gifts were largely responsible for the first day's receipts.

Workers will start a house-to-house solicitation within a day or two for funds to open a recreation for service men in Mansfield and maintain others in cities near training centers. County USO headquarters is in the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. rooms.

CAN BE TAXED

Housing Authorities Subject to State Levy, Court Rules.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The Ohio supreme court ruled today that metropolitan housing authorities were subject to the state property tax.

The decision came on an appeal by the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority from a ruling of the state board of tax appeals and, in effect, determined the taxing status of all authorities in the state.

LEAVES ESTATE

Barrymore Had Less Than $10,000; It Goes to Children.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The estate of John Barrymore, who earned more than a million dollars in his lifetime as an actor, amounts to $10,000 or less in cash, plus personal property.

The last testament of the "Great Profile" to be filed next Tuesday for probate, provides that the estate go to his three children, Diana Barrymore, 21, daughter by his second wife, Michael Strange, and John Blyth Barrymore, 10, and Ethel Dolores Barrymore, 12, by his third wife, Dolores Costello.

SCHOOL LEVY PASSES

Ordinance Providing City Blackouts Passes Council

Mansfield city officials today had the power but not the machinery to plunge the city into darkness for blackouts or to enforce air raid precautions.

City council last night passed an ordinance giving the mayor the authority to carry out emergency measures to insure the success of blackouts or air raid precautions.

The ordinance permitted the appointment of special police to serve during blackouts and air raids and established a $500 fine for violation of an order to extinguish any light displayed contrary to rules or regulations of the blackout program.

The blackout ordinance was passed because as the ordinance says, "failure to comply with orders, rules and regulations governing evacuations, traffic movements, congregation of persons in streets or other public places will result in confusion and unnecessary loss of life both during blackouts and during air raids in the daytime."

Council did not draft its own ordinance for blackout and air raid control but adopted a model ordinance drawn up by civilian defense officials for use in all American cities, the city has no machinery for signaling or handling any blackout or air raid as yet.

OK'S NEW GAS STATION LAW

City Council Repeals Old One, Sets Up 72-Hour-Week Effective in 30 Days.

Without a bit of internal controversy, Mansfield's city council last night passed a new ordinance restricting the operation of gasoline service stations in the city but the law won't go into effect for another 30 days.

Council passed a gasoline curfew ordinance three months ago only to have the city enjoined by court order against enforcement of the legislation.

The original ordinance passed by council set a 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily schedule for all service stations in the city and a 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. schedule for Sundays. Only one or two stations were to remain open during the evening hours to give service, and these would be designated by the police department.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio asked for and got an injunction against the ordinance, however, attacking its constitutionality. At present, the injunction hearing is still pending.

Last night, council repealed the old ordinance and passed another which would limit the operation of all stations in the city to 72 hours a week. Station owners would be permitted to operate any 72 hours they wished but would be requested to post a schedule at the beginning of each week.

The ordinance was passed by a 5 to 3 vote after Councilman George Kyle had attempted to head off passage of the bill by calling for a postponement of the third and final reading. His motion was defeated by a five to three vote.

Kyle argued that the government would have a gasoline rationing program into effect in the near-future and that it was "not in the province of council" to legislate on the matter.

Kyle, Councilman Roy Vaughn and Councilman Paul Bush voted against the ordinance while Councilmen C. N. Shultz, Russel D. Porch, James R. Anderson, Clifford G Knarr and Michael Mihalick voted in its favor.

High School Days To End Tomorrow For 308 Seniors

The climax of high school activities for 308 Mansfield Senior high school pupils will be reached tomorrow when commencement exercises are held at Stadium field at 6 p. m.

With the bright sun shining today, seniors were on hand this morning for final rehearsals before tomorrow's outdoor exercises. If rain should come exercises will be held in the auditorium.

Dr. Gordon K. Chalmers, president of Kenyon college, will deliver the commencement address. His topic will be "Intelligence and Victory."

Glenn G. Rohleder, completing his first year as principal of the Senior high school, will present the class for graduation. Diplomas will be awarded by H. W. Arlin, president of the Board of Education and father of one of the graduates.

The salutation will be given by Lee Adams, president of the class, and Wanda Hess, accompanied by the Senior high school orchestra, will sing "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

BRITISH TAKE INITIATIVE IN DESERT BATTLE

Raiding Column Circles Foe To Seize Nazi Stronghold West of Main Front.

SANDSTORM HIDES AREA

Rommel Consolidates, Scores Minor Success Between Minefield Gaps.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—Britain's eighth army, seizing the initiative in the Libyan desert, has captured the German stronghold of Segnali by sending a raiding column 30 miles west of the Imperial main positions, a Middle East headquarters communique reveiled today.

The British commander-in-chief, Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, disclosed that British forces yesterday stopped another Axis attack on their southern flank near Bir Hacheim, 48 miles southwest of Tobruk.

The communique said the British occupied Segnali, a key supply base only 38 miles southeast of Melkili, on Monday and were "actively harassing" Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel's supply lines from the west.

Segnali, identified in the communique as "Rotunda Segnali," is 44 miles almost due west of Knightsbridge, the desert crossroads 28 miles southwest of Tobruk where hard-pressed Axis units were reported still battling fiercely against increasing Imperial pressure.

The force which took Segnali was believed to be one of two columns sent out on "daring missions" from Bir Hachein. One drove almost straight west into the Segnali and Tengeder area from where the original Axis offensive was launched a week ago.

The communique said the Axis forces unsuccessfully attacked Bir Hacheim throughout yesterday and that the area west of Knightsbridge was the "scene of considerable fighting."

"Heavy sandstorms hampered air and land operations," it added. The brown haze was believed to have hidden consolidation move by the Nazis.

The British credited Rommel with one minor success along the mine fields stretching northwestward from Bir Hacheim to El Gazala. It said his forces had succeeded in occupying the area between the two gaps in the fields, one at Mteifel Es-Seghir, about 40

SUBS SINK FOUR

Navy Reveals Torpedoing of Allied Merchant Ships.

(By United Press)

The sinking of four United Nations merchant ships by Axis submarines was announced by the navy Tuesday night and Wednesday. The attacks took at least 15 lives, with one listed as probably dead and 19 classed as missing.

The latest victim reported was a medium-sized British merchantman torpedoed and shelled by a large, freshly painted submarine on May 20, 500 miles east of Bermuda.

On the same day a medium-sized Panamanian merchantman was sunk in the Atlantic but all but one of the crew of 45 were rescued next day by a United States naval vessel.

A medium-sized United States cargo ship was sunk in the Caribbean May 17, two men being killed when two torpedoes struck their vessel and exploded ammunition it was carrying.

Bombers Slash Ruhr Industry, Hit Coastline

300 British Planes Participate In New Sweep Across French, Dutch Areas; Krupp Works Target; Germans Drop 10,000 Fire Bombs on Canterbury.

(By United Press)

LONDON—The Royal Air Force again attacked Essen and other battered Ruhr industrial targets with several hundred bombers during the night and renewed daylight raids on the Axis-held European coast today in a steady onslaught that started new fires in German war factory centers.

The night raids, in which about 300 British planes were believed to have participated as compared to more than 1,000 on Saturday and Monday nights, extended over a wide area from the French and Dutch coasts to Germany's big inland war industries.

(A German communique today said that about 200 persons were killed in the big RAF raid on Cologne, but the Nazis have avoided specific comment on results of the Essen attack.)

Pilots of the British attacking force, which included American-built planes, reported that they found smoke spread over many miles of the Ruhr and rising thousands of feet into the sky and that the results of last night's attacks were satisfactory.

The Krupp arms works, which were the main target on Monday night, were understood to have been attacked again in last night's raid.

German planes caused an air alarm in London during the night and again attacked a town in southeastern England. (The Berlin radio said the Germans dropped 10,000 incendiary bombs on Canterbury last night.)

The British attacks on Germany last night were on a reduced scale compared to the Cologne and Essen raids.

Fourteen planes failed to return, against 35 lost the night before. But the smoke and ground haze, so thick that observation was difficult, hindered German anti-aircraft fire and it was believed the loss ratio was probably lower than in any of the three raids so far in the new offensive which is aimed at smashing German industrial centers one by one.

Watchers along the English coast heard the bombers returning before dawn, and it was more than an hour before all had passed over.

While the main force of British planes concentrated on the Ruhr, others bombed northern France, especially the Cape Gris Nez coastal area. A huge fire could be seen from the English coast.

Maintaining the round the clock pace of raids, strong forces of bombing and fighter planes raced over the southeast coast shortly after noon to attack objectives in northern occupied France.

An air ministry communique said the Ruhr attackers left large fires burning at Essen and other industrial points.

It added that in their Monday night raid on the Ruhr the British planes shot down two German night fighters.

The communique said bombers and fighters, continuing the fighter command's own offensive, attacked docks at Dieppe, France, during the night, laid mines in enemy waters and attacked air

READY: Congress All Set to Declare War Against Balkans

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Without a dissenting vote, the house today voted war against Bulgaria, and proceeded immediately to a separate vote on declarations against Hungary and Rumania.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A war-minded house stood ready today to accede overwhelmingly to a recommendation of President Roosevelt that Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary be added to the list of nations with which the United States officially is at war.

Only the formality of a roll-call was needed to speed to the senate resolutions drafted by Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) declaring a state of war to exist between those three nations and Uncle Sam.

McCormack said he would call up the war business as soon as the house convened at noon.

No one could be found who openly opposed the declarations. Representative Jeanette Rankin (R., Mont.), who cast the only negative vote on the declaration of war against Japan last December, would not say what course she would follow today. On two later war resolutions, aimed at Italy and Germany, Miss Rankin voted "present."

That the senate would give its approval to the president's recommendation as soon as it convened Thursday was indicated by comments from its members.

Typical of these was the remark of Senator Nye (R., N. D.) that "when others declare war on us, there is no other answer. We must clear the decks for later military and political action."

A formal declaration against the three nations which have been aiding the Axis was seen by Senatory Johnson (D., Colo.) as being of "some benefit to Russia" and beneficial to United States relations with Turkey.

BITE: Chinese Take Chunk of Jap Flank; Rains Hamper Enemy

(By Associated Press)

Chinese dispatches reported today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had cut a triangular chunk from the flank of the Japanese lines in Chekiang province with the recapture of Yangki, 45 miles northwest of Kinhwa, and said heavy rains were bogging the Japanese invasion of China's east coast.

Serious difficulties still confronted the Chinese in lower Chekiang, however, as Japanese columns battled the defenders only 12 miles northeast of the important city of Chuhsien, 45 miles southwest of Kinhwa, the Japanese-occupied provincial capital.

A Tokyo broadcast asserted that a new Japanese offensive in Kiangsi province, adjoining coastal Chekiang on the west, had made considerable progress, with the apparent objective of seizing the whole Chekiang-Kiangsi railway.

Japanese columns were reported driving from both ends of the rail line, still some 200 miles apart.

The new drive, carried out by a column described as an "elite force," was reported as having already captured the important town of Chienhsien, 25 miles fields, railroads and industrial targets in occupied territory.

RAF BLASTS AT ESSEN IN NEW BOMBING RAID

300 Planes in Sweep Across Wide Area; Nazis Again Attack Canterbury.

These raids, the ministry said, extended from Holland to Brittany in France.

American-made Douglas Boston and Havoc attack bombers, the ministry said, bombed factories in northern France. A power station was hit and engines and freight trains were bombed in a railroad marshalling yard. One British Hurricane plane blew up three freight trains, the ministry reported.

A special air ministry statement said Britain's daylight sweeps over the continent which are taking a steady toll, marked the beginning of the second front in the west, because domination of the air by the British fighters was an essential preliminary to an invasion.

It was said that during May more than 7,700 flights were made over France by daylight, which meant an average of 250 planes

Asserting that not only were the sweeps keeping Germany on the defensive, and keeping nearly half its fighter plane strength in the west, but that the Germans were losing more planes than the Royal Air Force in these operations.

During the first five months of 1942, it said, the equivalent of 15 German fighter squadrons had been destroyed, in addition to enemy planes shot down by night or in protecting coastal shipping

In terms of shortening the war by damaging German war industry, it was asserted, the two raids on the Ruhr overshadowed the great raid Saturday night on Cologne which started the new British round the clock offensive.

Last night's raid was designed to keep fires burning at Essen, at the river port of Duisburg where the coke ovens of the German steel trust are centered; at Oberhausen, a suburb of Essen; Glesenkirche, seat of coal mines and synthetic gasoline works; at Wanne, railroad junction and freight marshalling yard; at Bochum, coal mine and iron foundry center, and at Dortmund, home of the German central electricity works.

Hundreds of thousands of small new type incendiary bombs started the fires in Essen and other towns Monday night, and last night's pilots reported that they still were illuminating one of the most highly industrialized areas in the world.

A single German plane, which flew over greater London during the night while planes made a retaliation raid on southeast England, gave central London its first alarm since March 16 A few incendiary bombs, the first bombs to strike in London since last July 28, fell in a big park. They set grass fires which were put out quickly.

German planes flew in small numbers over several southeast England towns and dropped bombs that caused considerable damage to homes, shops and one church in one town. Casualties were light.

Dispatches from Berne, Switzerland, said that no copies of the leading Cologne newspaper Zeitung had been received in Switzerland since the British raid Saturday night, and that yesterday's issue of Field Marshal Hermann Goering's own newspaper, the National Zeitung of Essen, was not received yesterday.

The secret anti-Nazi German revolution station in its broadcasts said that the anti-air defenses of both Cologne and Essen failed.

Russians Repulse Nazi 'Feeler" Attacks

MOSCOW — (UP) — The Russians claimed today to have dealt the Germans resounding blows in local actions all along the front

Apparently the Germans were feeling out Soviet positions for weak points, but last midnight's communique indicated that they were finding none. The Russians were pushing forward in at least one place, in an assault on an important, but unidentified, locality.

The communique said there was no change in the front line as a whole.

On a sector of the southern front, it said, Soviet units beat off several German attempts to drive wedges into their lines, and the Germans lost 270 killed.

On the Bryansk front, Russian forces destroyed eight dugouts, an artillery battery and a radio station, and killed more than 160 Germans, besides taking prisoners.

Nazis Admit Damage In Ruhr Valley

BERLIN — (German broadcast recorded by United Press in New York)—British bombers, again raiding the Ruhr area of western Germany, caused "considerable" fire damage last night, particularly in the factory city of Duisburg near Essen, the high command said today.

A communique said much of the damage was restricted to residential quarters and public buildings. Fourteen British bombers were said to have been shot down.

The high command described the raids as "harassing attacks," and disputed British reports that 20,000 persons were killed in the week-end raid on Cologne.

"It must be stated that 200 dead must be mourned as victims of this attack," the communique said.

It said merely that fighting in North Africa was continuing.

The communique reported that encircled Russian forces in the central sector of the Russian front were "annihilated" with the loss of more than 1,500 Soviet troops. Two thousand Russians prisoners were said to have been captured and 400 other enemy troops killed.

Twenty-four after the British 1,036 plane raid on Essen, Germany hadn't admitted that Essen had been attacked.

It put the number of casualties in all British raids from the start of the war to May 1 at 6,107 killed and 15,573 wounded.

Finally there was a mention of Essen, but only in a morse telegraphic code broadcast to foreign countries and not in general broadcasts.

Soviets Gleeful Over RAF Raids

MOSCOW — (AP) — Britain's thousand-plane bombings of Germany this week have aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in Soviet Russia for the feats of her ally.

"The Soviet people together with the freedom-loving peoples of the world welcome with a feeling of deep satisfaction the successes of the British airforce in the great aerial operations it has started," said Red Star, newspaper of the Russian army.

Report Timoshenko Wounded At Kharkov

LONDON — (INS) — Marshal Seymon Timoshenko, commander or the Russian armies of the Ukraine, was slightly wounded in the battle of Kharkov, a Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Mail declared today.

Fragments from a bomb dropped by a German Stuka struck Timoshenko and several members of his staff while they were inspecting a temporary airdrome at the front, the Stockholm dispatch said.

Hunt Assassin of Pro-Nazi Editor

VICHY —(INS)— German authorities today widened their search for the unidentified assassin who shot and killed Albert Clement, Fascist and pro-Nazi editor, on a Paris street corner Tuesday. Clement's wife, who was strolling with him, was wounded in the leg by the gunman who escaped on a bicycle.

The victim was editor of the newspaper Cri du People, which is owned by Jacques Doriot, often described as France's most fervent pro-Nazi, and who is believed in many French circles to be even closer to the German regime than Pierre Laval.

When news of the assassination reached Vichy, Laval was meeting with his collaborationist cabinet to discuss means of suppressing popular outbreaks against the Nazi rule. A decision was reached to summon the dreaded "tribunal for the security of the state" to try persons charged with disorders.

Among the first to face the tribunal, it was said, would be prisoners arrested after the food riots in Paris Sunday when two policemen were shot and killed and several wounded.

CROPS DAMAGED BY CLOUDBURST

Ontario, Lexington and Lucas Sections Hit Hard By Heavy Rain and Wind.

The rain fell gently throughout the early part of the evening.

Although skies were generally clear in the Mansfield area at noon today, the weatherman forecast more showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight.

From a high of 87 degrees yesterday afternoon, the mercury skidded to 62 after the storm. By noon today, however, it was back to 80. Humidity was lower today and the heat was not so oppressive.

Another severe storm struck the Dayton area last night, injuring at least six persons. Lightning stunned four civilian employes at Wright field near Dayton and injured Herman Carver, 27, at Middletown. Mrs. Cubert Bush, 29, was injured when struck by flying debris near Troy.

Lightning shattered a cornice on the Dayton Daily News building, but no one was injured. Wilmington was thrown into darkness when a storm damaged power lines between the city and Dayton.

FIRE DAMAGE $100,000

Makes Water Into Gasless Gas

Is this what the motoring world has been waiting for? Anthony Morch at the New York Inventors' exposition demonstrates how easily he converts water into gas. The bottle he is holding contains water and sodium. Electricity, he says, generates hydrogen. At a cost of only five cents a gallon the gasless gas is said to have twice the energy of ordinary gasoline. And, says Morch, it is a cinch to convert ordinary automobile engines so they can use the gas.

They are Joseph Barr, clothing store proprietor, who was held under $15,000 bond on a charge of receiving stolen goods; Edward Lipson, receiving stolen goods, $10,000 bond; Mrs. Fay Burke, receiving stolen goods, $2,500 bond, and I. T. Hector, negro, grand larceny, $5,000 bond.

Police said they had recovered 500 suits.

Cincinnati police said that $50,000 worth of clothing had been stolen.

WINNERS IN FISH AND GAME ESSAY CONTEST ANNOUNCED

Ten winners in the wildlife conservation essay contest sponsored by the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association were announced today by John C. Friday, chairman of the association's essay committee.

Two sets of prizes, covering entries by fifth and sixth grade pupils and seventh and eighth grade pupils in Mansfield and Richland county schools, will be awarded tonight at a meeting of the association in North Lake park pavilion.

Prize winners in the seventh-eighth grade group are:

First, Ruthanita Montoya, eighth grade, Lexington school, $10; second, James Hicks, eighth grade, Lexington school, $5; third, Jane Prosser, seventh grade, Lexington school, $2.50; honorable mention, Junior Pitman, sixth grade, Carpenter school, and Joan Freeland, sixth grade, West Fifth street school.

Judges were Floyd Dent, Mansfield area Boy Scout executive; William S. Barden of the Richland County Farm Bureau, and Robert E Rogers, News-Journal state editor Dent will speak at the meeting scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. today.

Insurance on Old Flusher Develops City Hall Mystery

"had no idea of what happened to it."

Council President Howard G. Miller likewise knew nothing about the vanished legislation.

Wagner prepared the legislation on a request by the mayor's secretary. Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said yesterday he "knew nothing about the ordinance."

Although the flusher assumed sudden importance for a day as an insurance prospect, its value for flushing streets didn't improve at all. Street employes, including Street Superintendent Charles H. Hebel, said it was used only on rare occasions and that only a half of its original pressure could be obtained from its sprayers.

The proposed insurance was designed to protect the flusher from fire, theft and other hazards—all of which the equipment had successfully weathered during its 16 years with the city. At no time in the past has insurance been requested on the flusher.

BRIDGES FREED AFTER ARREST

Goes To Washington To Attend CIO Conference.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Free again under $3,000 bond after his arrest yesterday on a deportation warrant, Harry Bridges, California labor leader, was scheduled to arrive in Washington today to attend a wartime conference of the CIO executive council

In the nation's capital, Bridges also will confer with his eastern counsel, Mrs. Carol King, on plans for the legal battle that eventually will determine his status in the United States.

Bridges surrendered yesterday to immigration authorities in San Francisco and within two hours was released on bail and obtained permission from U. S. Judge A. F. St. Sure to leave the jurisdiction of the southern California federal district.

miles southwest of Tobruk, and another at Ualeb, 15 miles farther south.

But dispatches and authoritative reports said Rommel was suffering tremendous losses of equipment as the British pressed their counter-attack. At least 1,260 enemy tanks and vehicles already have been captured or destroyed.

While Rommel stepped up his presure from the west, Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's British eighth army countered with new blows from the east in an effort to wipe out all resistance. Farther east, other British units were reported "mopping up" small forces that were left along the original Axis line of advance last week.

Front dispatches said a large enemy force was involved at Knightsbridge and both sides were hurling all available equipment into action. Despite recurring sand storms, British infantry units were on front-line duty.

Rommel was making no further effort to withdraw additional mechanized forces through the gaps in the mine fields, and some observers believed he was gambling on the outcome of the Knightsbridge battle to retrieve his defeat.

Heavy loss of equipment, however, appeared to preclude an Axis success. Already about half of the German and Italian tanks in Libya are believed to have been knocked out or captured.

Reports from the front credited American 28-ton tanks known as "General Grants" with a leading role in battering back the Axis advance.

REPORT ISSUED

1,340,000 Pounds of Scrap Collected By Industry.

The "scrap drive within industry" has produced more than 1,340,000 pounds of scrap iron and steel since the campaign was launched among industrial firms of Mansfield, Ashland, Bucyrus, Galion, and other cities of the area six weeks ago, a progress report disclosed today.

The drive, instigated by the War Production board, is being directed by a Mansfield chamber of commerce committee headed by Lewis F. Hartman, president of the Manufacturers' club.

Meeting today with Glenn L. Logan, of the WPB industrial salvage section, Hartman and Secretary John G. Routzon of the chamber of commerce reported the scrap collection to date has produced the following:

Scrap iron and steel, 1,340,682 pounds; copper, 27,229 pounds, lead, 1,767 pounds; brass, 21,481 pounds; aluminum and tin, 30,224 pounds; paper, 310,171 pounds, rags, 5,276 pounds; rubber, 158,745 pounds; and corregated cartons, leather and other miscellaneous material, 42,798 pounds.

HOUSE GETS NEW SUPPLY MEASURE

Bill Would Provide $887,000,000 For New Submarines.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house appropriations committee sent to the floor today a supplementary navy, marine corps and coast guard supply bill calling for $654,999,740 in direct appropriations and $1,037,500,000 in contract authorization, of which $887,500,000 was earmarked for submarine construction.

Just how many submersibles this would provide for has never been disclosed officially, but semi-official estimates were that it would add upwards of 100 long-range undersea raiders to the fleet.

To be added to the new bill as an amendment on the floor, said Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the naval committee, was another contract authorization for $1,115,000,000 for construction of 500,000 tons of auxiliary naval vessels.

ESCAPEE CAUGHT

Prison Farm Inmate Gets 2 Years Added to Sentence.

LONDON — (UP) — Thirty-six hours of freedom cost Carl Hipshire of Xenia two additional years in prison.

Hipshire, serving a 1 to 20 year sentence for auto theft, walked away from the Lebanon camp of the London prison farm Sunday night and was arrested at Xenia 36 hours later. He will be returned to Ohio penitentiary to complete his sentence.

PLAN CONTEST

Communists, Social-Laborites To Fight Sweeney Ruling.

COLUMBUS — (INS)— Court battles contesting denial of Communist and Social-Labor parties a place on the Ohio ballot this fall appeared likely today.

Joseph Brandt, state organizer for the Communists, said in Cleveland that his party would appeal, and at Akron, William Farkas, Ohio secretary of the Socialist-Labor party, said steps to counteract the denial likely would be taken.

APPROVES PAY BOOST

HAMILTON —(AP)— The Hamilton board of education approved a blanket $10-a-month salary increase for all school employes except cafeteria workers, effective Sept. 1.

REPORTS RIOT IN BAHAMAS

American Consul Says Windows Smashed at Nassau.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The state department today is in receipt of reports from American Consul John W. Dye at Nassau, Bahamas, disclosing that rioting occurred there Monday following a strike of airfield laborers.

Dye informed the department that the rioters smashed automobiles, shop windows and looted freely on Bay street. He said that there was still some disturbances yesterday morning, but military police had arrived on the scene and no further rioting was explained.

The Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, who arrived in Washington Monday, hurriedly returned to Nassau by plane Monday night when he was informed of the rioting.

WOMEN COPS

Himmler Plans to Replace Men In German Police Departments.

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — Reports reaching Stockholm today said that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, had decided to replace all male office workers in German police departments with women.

The reports said that the move was necessitated by the need for additional Gestapo agents to police Nazi troops in occupied countries.

WANTS TO HELP

Woman Who Escaped Japs Offers Aid In Civilian Defense.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Safe after an 18,000-mile flight from the Japs, Mrs. James Banes of Elyria, who knows a little about administration of civilian defense under fire, wants to help out in Ohio's home defense program.

Mrs. Banes, a former volunteer member of the Red Cross ambulance corps who for the past several months has helped evacuted wounded from bombed areas in the Far East, offered her services to Gov. John W. Bricker and the state defense council today.

southeast of its starting point at Nanchang.

In the far south, in Kwangtung province, the Japanese claimed steady progress for their third major offensive moving northward from Canton along the Canton-Hankow railway.

While Chiang's armies struggled to stem the offensive, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told parliament in London that Britain and the United States were sending China all lease-lend war materials "which it is possible to supply" amid "other urgent requirements and the difficulties of transport."

The United States yesterday signed an agreement bringing China into the lease-lend bloc of Allies on virtually the same basis as Britain.

Other developments:

MADAGASCAR — France's Vichy government announced that British troops had started moving south on the 1,000-mile French island of Madagascar, off the coast of southeast Africa, and had occupied the town of Androvorano.

Androvorano lies 25 miles south of the big Diego Suarez naval base, captured by British seaborne troops in a surprise attack a month ago.

No fighting was mentioned in the announcement, but air activity was said to have increased on both sides.

AUSTRALIA — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's readquarters reported that Allied bombers had inflicted heavy new blows on Japanese barracks and other targets on enemy-held "invasion" bases north of Australia.

A communique said United Nations airmen set huge fires at Tulagi, deep in the Solomon Islands off Australia's northeast coast, and also attacked Rabaul, in New Britain, and Atamboea, Timor island.

BURMA—American "Flying Tiger" volunteers were officially credited with destroying 28 to 32 Japanese planes and making 12 major attacks with a loss of only six planes during May.

Dispatches said the AVG's bombing and strafing of Japanese troops attempting to cross the Salween river had given the Chinese time to establish proper defense lines to block Japanese spearheads jabbing into China's far southwest Yunnan province from Burma.

What Causes Your Constipation?

The super-refined foods we eat these days too often do not give us enough "bulk food." And medical science tells us that lack of sufficient "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation!

If that is your trouble, harsh cathartics and violent purges are, at best, only temporary remedies. How much better to get at the cause and correct it!

Why not make sure that you are getting the "bulk" you need by eating Kellogg's All-Bran? All-Bran is a delicious, crispy cereal that millions of folks rely on. Eat All-Bran yourself—eat it daily—and drink plenty of water—not only to get regular but to keep regular. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

WHEN you consider the new products we've seen developed in our time... you'd think that just about everything worth while in the world was invented in the last few years.

It's kind of refreshing, for a change, to find out that some pleasant things in our modern life date way back to ancient days.

For instance—I read the other day about a piece of pottery some scientists dug up in Mesopotamia. On the pottery was a picture of two brewery workers making beer.

That picture was 6,000 years old!

You know, that's something to think about. Beer...6,000 years ago! I wonder if it tasted anything like the good lager beer I have sent up to the house every now and then.

Somewhere else, I read that beer came over on the Mayflower—in fact, if I remember right, a shortage of beer was one of the reasons why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock instead of somewhere else.

Interesting, isn't it, the way a simple, everyday beverage like beer can get tangled up with history!

Maybe it's because there's something fundamental and human about beer. It's the beverage of moderate, sensible, well-behaved people in every part of the world, and always has been.

Personally, I like it because it tastes so good and is so refreshing ... and I know I can trust it. And I get a thrill out of thinking that maybe some writer fellow back in ancient Egypt or ancient Mesopotamia, thousands of years ago, felt the same way about beer as I do.

It's a small world, after all ...

Joe Marsh

RAF BLASTS AT ESSEN IN NEW BOMBING RAID

300 Planes in Sweep Across Wide Area; Nazis Again Attack Canterbury.

fields, railroads and industrial targets in occupied territory.

These raids, the ministry said, extended from Holland to Brittany in France.

American-made Douglas Boston and Havoc attack bombers, the ministry said, bombed factories in northern France. A power station was hit and engines and freight trains were bombed in a railroad marshalling yard. One British Hurricane plane blew up three freight trains, the ministry reported.

A special air ministry statement said Britain's daylight sweeps over the continent which are taking a steady toll, marked the beginning of the second front in the west, because domination of the air by the British fighters was an essential preliminary to an invasion.

It was said that during May more than 7,700 flights were made over France by daylight, which meant an average of 250 planes

Asserting that not only were the sweeps keeping Germany on the defensive, and keeping nearly half its fighter plane strength in the west, but that the Germans were losing more planes than the Royal Air Force in these operations.

During the first five months of 1942, it said, the equivalent of 15 German fighter squadrons had been destroyed, in addition to enemy planes shot down by night or in protecting coastal shipping.

In terms of shortening the war by damaging German war industry, it was asserted, the two raids on the Ruhr overshadowed the great raid Saturday night on Cologne which started the new British round the clock offensive.

Last night's raid was designed to keep fires burning at Essen, at the river port of Duisburg where the coke ovens of the German steel trust are centered; at Oberhausen, a suburb of Essen; Glesenkirche, seat of coal mines and synthetic gasoline works; at Wanne, railroad junction and freight marshalling yard; at Bochum, coal mine and iron foundry center, and at Dortmund, home of the German central electricity works.

Hundreds of thousands of small new type incendiary bombs started the fires in Essen and other towns Monday night, and last night's pilots reported that they still were illuminating one of the most highly industrialized areas in the world.

A single German plane, which flew over greater London during the night while planes made a retaliation raid on southeast England, gave central London its first alarm since March 16. A few incendiary bombs, the first bombs to strike in London since last July 28, fell in a big park. They set grass fires which were put out quickly.

German planes flew in small numbers over several southeast England towns and dropped bombs that caused considerable damage to homes, shops and one church in one town. Casualties were light.

Dispatches from Berne, Switzerland, said that no copies of the leading Cologne newspaper Zeitung had been received in Switzerland since the British raid Saturday night, and that yesterday's issue of Field Marshal Hermann Goering's own newspaper, the National Zeitung of Essen, was not received yesterday.

The secret anti-Nazi German revolution station in its broadcasts said that the anti-air defenses of both Cologne and Essen failed.

Russians Repulse Nazi 'Feeler" Attacks

MOSCOW — (UP) — The Russians claimed today to have dealt the Germans resounding blows in local actions all along the front.

Apparently the Germans were feeling out Soviet positions for weak points, but last midnight's communique indicated that they were finding none. The Russians were pushing forward in at least one place, in an assault on an important but unidentified, locality.

The communique said there was no change in the front line as a whole.

On a sector of the southern front, it said, Soviet units beat off several German attempts to drive wedges into their lines, and the Germans lost 270 killed.

On the Bryansk front, Russian forces destroyed eight dugouts, an artillery battery and a radio station, and killed more than 160 Germans, besides taking prisoners.

Nazis Admit Damage In Ruhr Valley

BERLIN — (German broadcast recorded by United Press in New York)—British bombers, again raiding the Ruhr area of western Germany, caused "considerable" fire damage last night, particularly in the factory city of Duisburg near Essen, the high command said today.

A communique said much of the damage was restricted to residential quarters and public buildings. Fourteen British bombers were said to have been shot down.

The high command described the raids as "harassing attacks," and disputed British reports that 20,000 persons were killed in the week-end raid on Cologne.

"It must be stated that 200 dead must be mourned as victims of this attack," the communique said

It said merely that fighting in North Africa was continuing.

The communique reported that encircled Russian forces in the central sector of the Russian front were "annihilated" with the loss of more than 1,500 Soviet troops. Two thousand Russians prisoners were said to have been captured and 400 other enemy troops killed.

Twenty-four after the British 1,036 plane raid on Essen, Germany hadn't admitted that Essen had been attacked.

It put the number of casualties in all British raids from the start of the war to May 1 at 6,107 killed and 15,573 wounded.

Finally there was a mention of Essen, but only in a morse telegraphic code broadcast to foreign countries and not in general broadcasts.

Soviets Gleeful Over RAF Raids

MOSCOW — (AP) — Britain's thousand-plane bombings of Germany this week have aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in Soviet Russia for the feats of her ally.

"The Soviet people together with the freedom-loving peoples of the world welcome with a feeling of deep satisfaction the successes of the British airforce in the great aerial operations it has started," said Red Star, newspaper of the Russian army.

Report Timoshenko Wounded At Kharkov

LONDON — (INS) — Marshal Seymon Timoshenko, commander or the Russian armies of the Ukraine, was slightly wounded in the battle of Kharkov, a Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Mail declared today.

Fragments from a bomb dropped by a German Stuka struck Timoshenko and several members of his staff while they were inspecting a temporary airdrome at the front, the Stockholm dispatch said.

Hunt Assassin of Pro-Nazi Editor

VICHY — (INS) — German authorities today widened their search for the unidentified assassin who shot and killed Albert Clement, Fascist and pro-Nazi editor, on a Paris street corner Tuesday. Clement's wife, who was strolling with him, was wounded in the leg by the gunman who escaped on a bicycle.

The victim was editor of the newspaper Cri du People, which is owned by Jacques Doriot, often described as France's most fervent pro-Nazi, and who is believed in many French circles to be even closer to the German regime than Pierre Laval.

When news of the assassination reached Vichy, Laval was meeting with his collaborationist cabinet to discuss means of suppressing popular outbreaks against the Nazi rule. A decision was reached to summon the dreaded "tribunal for the security of the state" to try persons charged with disorders.

Among the first to face the tribunal, it was said, would be prisoners arrested after the food riots in Paris Sunday when two policemen were shot and killed and several wounded.

High School Days To End Tomorrow For 308 Seniors

Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran church, will deliver the invocation and the benediction will be given by Rev. Martin L. Gordon, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. church in Toledo.

With seniors winding up their school activities tomorrow evening, the remaining 5,800 pupils in the Mansfield public schools completed their official school year yesterday but will return to school tomorrow afternoon to receive their grade cards.

CROPS DAMAGED BY CLOUDBURST

Ontario, Lexington and Lucas Sections Hit Hard By Heavy Rain and Wind.

The rain fell gently throughout the early part of the evening.

Although skies were generally clear in the Mansfield area at noon today, the weatherman forecast more showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight.

From a high of 87 degrees yesterday afternoon, the mercury skidded to 62 after the storm. By noon today, however, it was back to 80. Humidity was lower today and the heat was not so oppressive.

Another severe storm struck the Dayton area last night, injuring at least six persons. Lightning stunned four civilian employes at Wright field near Dayton and injured Herman Carver, 27, at Middletown. Mrs. Cubert Bush, 29, was injured when struck by flying debris near Troy.

Lightning shattered a cornice on the Dayton Daily News building, but no one was injured. Wilmington was thrown into darkness when a storm damaged power lines between the city and Dayton.

FIRE DAMAGE $100,000

LOGAN —(AP)— Damage estimated unofficially at $100,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed a two-story building housing J. C. Penney store, an electrical supply shop, four offices and sorority rooms

Makes Water Into Gasless Gas

Is this what the motoring world has been waiting for? Anthony Morch at the New York Inventors' exposition demonstrates how easily he converts water into gas. The bottle he is holding contains water and sodium. Electricity, he says, generates hydrogen. At a cost of only five cents a gallon the gasless gas is said to have twice the energy of ordinary gasoline. And, says Morch, it is a cinch to convert ordinary automobile engines so they can use the gas.

The four persons arrested at Cincinnati in connection with investigation of the ring's operation in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, were ordered held for grand jury acton. All four pleaded innocent.

They are Joseph Barr, clothing store proprietor, who was held under $15,000 bond on a charge of receiving stolen goods; Edward Lipson, receiving stolen goods, $10,000 bond; Mrs. Fay Burke, receiving stolen goods, $2,500 bond, and I T. Hector, negro, grand larceny, $5,000 bond.

Police said they had recovered 500 suits

Cincinnati police said that $50,000 worth of clothing had been stolen.

WINNERS IN FISH AND GAME ESSAY CONTEST ANNOUNCED

Ten winners in the wildlife conservation essay contest sponsored by the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association were announced today by John C. Friday, chairman of the association's essay committee.

Two sets of prizes, covering entries by fifth and sixth grade pupils and seventh and eighth grade pupils in Mansfield and Richland county schools, will be awarded tonight at a meeting of the association in North Lake park pavilion.

Prize winners in the seventh-eighth grade group are:

First, Ruthanita Montoya, eighth grade, Lexington school, $10; second, James Hicks, eighth grade, Lexington school, $5, third, Jane Prosser, seventh grade, Lexington school, $2.50; honorable mention, Junior Pitman, sixth grade, Carpenter school, and Joan Freeland, sixth grade, West Fifth street school.

Judges were Floyd Dent, Mansfield area Boy Scout executive; William S. Barden of the Richland County Farm Bureau, and Robert E. Rogers, News-Journal state editor Dent will speak at the meeting scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. today.

Insurance on Old Flusher Develops City Hall Mystery

"had no idea of what happened to it."

Council President Howard G. Miller likewise knew nothing about the vanished legislation.

Wagner prepared the legislation on a request by the mayor's secretary. Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said yesterday he "knew nothing about the ordinance."

Although the flusher assumed sudden importance for a day as an insurance prospect, its value for flushing streets didn't improve at all. Street employes, including Street Superintendent Charles H. Hebel, said it was used only on rare occasions and that only a half of its original pressure could be obtained from its sprayers.

The proposed insurance was designed to protect the flusher from fire, theft and other hazards—all of which the equipment had successfully weathered during its 16 years with the city. At no time in the past has insurance been requested on the flusher.

BRIDGES FREED AFTER ARREST

Goes To Washington To Attend CIO Conference.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Free again under $3,000 bond after his arrest yesterday on a deportation warrant, Harry Bridges, California labor leader, was scheduled to arrive in Washington today to attend a wartime conference of the CIO executive council.

In the nation's capital, Bridges also will confer with his eastern counsel, Mrs. Carol King, on plans for the legal battle that eventually will determine his status in the United States.

Bridges surrendered yesterday to immigration authorities in San Francisco and within two hours was released on bail and obtained permission from U. S. Judge A. F. St. Sure to leave the jurisdiction of the southern California federal district.

FOUGHT U-BOATS

U. S. Ships In Convoy That Battled To Murmansk.

LONDON—(AP)— United States ships were included in the large convoy which fought its way to Murmansk last week through five days and nights of heavy attacks by German U-boats, dive bombers and torpedo planes, official circles reported today.

REPORTS RIOT IN BAHAMAS

American Consul Says Windows Smashed at Nassau.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The state department today is in receipt of reports from American Consul John W. Dye at Nassau, Bahamas, disclosing that rioting occurred there Monday following a strike of airfield laborers.

Dye informed the department that the rioters smashed automobiles, shop windows and looted freely on Bay street. He said that there was still some disturbances yesterday morning, but military police had arrived on the scene and no further rioting was explained.

The Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, who arrived in Washington Monday, hurriedly returned to Nassau by plane Monday night when he was informed of the rioting.

WOMEN COPS

Himmler Plans to Replace Men In German Police Departments.

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — Reports reaching Stockholm today said that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, had decided to replace all male office workers in German police departments with women.

The reports said that the move was necessitated by the need for additional Gestapo agents to police Nazi troops in occupied countries.

WANTS TO HELP

Woman Who Escaped Japs Offers Aid In Civilian Defense.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Safe after an 18,000-mile flight from the Japs, Mrs. James Banes of Elyria, who knows a little about administration of civilian defense under fire, wants to help out in Ohio's home defense program.

Mrs. Banes, a former volunteer member of the Red Cross ambulance corps who for the past several months has helped evacuted wounded from bombed areas in the Far East, offered her services to Gov. John W. Bricker and the state defense council today.

BRITISH TAKE INITIATIVE IN DESERT BATTLE

miles southwest of Tobruk, and another at Ualeb, 15 miles fartner south.

But dispatches and authoritative reports said Rommel was suffering tremendous losses of equipment as the British pressed their counter-attack. At least 1,260 enemy tanks and vehicles already have been captured or destroyed.

While Rommel stepped up his presure from the west, Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's British eighth army countered with new blows from the east in an effort to wipe out all resistance. Farther east, other British units were reported "mopping up" small forces that were left along the original Axis line of advance last week.

Front dispatches said a large enemy force was involved at Knightsbridge and both sides were hurling all available equipment into action. Despite recurring sand storms, British infantry units were on front-line duty.

Rommel was making no further effort to withdraw additional mechanized forces through the gaps in the mine fields, and some observers believed he was gambling on the outcome of the Knightsbridge battle to retrieve his defeat.

Heavy loss of equipment, however, appeared to preclude an Axis success. Already about half of the German and Italian tanks in Libya are believed to have been knocked out or captured.

Reports from the front credited American 28-ton tanks known as "General Grants" with a leading role in battering back the Axis advance.

REPORT ISSUED

1,340,000 Pounds of Scrap Collected By Industry.

The "scrap drive within industry" has produced more than 1,340,000 pounds of scrap iron and steel since the campaign was launched among industrial firms of Mansfield, Ashland, Bucyrus, Galion, and other cities of the area six weeks ago, a progress report disclosed today.

The drive, instigated by the War Production board, is being directed by a Mansfield chamber of commerce committee headed by Lewis F. Hartman, president of the Manufacturers' club.

Meeting today with Glenn L Logan, of the WPB industrial salvage section, Hartman and Secretary John G. Routzon of the chamber of commerce reported the scrap collection to date has produced the following:

Scrap iron and steel, 1,340,682 pounds; copper, 27,229 pounds; lead, 1,767 pounds; brass, 21,481 pounds; aluminum and tin, 30,224 pounds; paper, 310,171 pounds; rags, 5,276 pounds; rubber, 158,745 pounds; and corregated cartons, leather and other miscellaneous material, 42,798 pounds.

HOUSE GETS NEW SUPPLY MEASURE

Bill Would Provide $887,000,000 For New Submarines.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house appropriations committee sent to the floor today a supplementary navy, marine corps and coast guard supply bill calling for $654,999,740 in direct appropriations and $1,037,500,000 in contract authorization, of which $887,500,000 was earmarked for submarine construction.

Just how many submersibles this would provide for has never been disclosed officially, but semi-official estimates were that it would add upwards of 100 long-range undersea raiders to the fleet.

To be added to the new bill as an amendment on the floor, said Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the naval committee, was another contract authorization for $1,115,000,000 for construction of 500,000 tons of auxiliary naval vessels.

ESCAPEE CAUGHT

Prison Farm Inmate Gets 2 Years Added to Sentence.

LONDON — (U.P.) — Thirty-six hours of freedom cost Carl Hipshire of Xenia two additional years in prison.

Hipshire, serving a 1 to 20 year sentence for auto theft, walked away from the Lebanon camp of the London prison farm Sunday night and was arrested at Xenia 36 hours later. He will be returned to Ohio penitentiary to complete his sentence.

PLAN CONTEST

Communists, Social-Laborites To Fight Sweeney Ruling.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Court battles contesting denial of Communist and Social-Labor parties a place on the Ohio ballot this fall appeared likely today.

Joseph Brandt, state organizer for the Communists, said in Cleveland that his party would appeal, and at Akron, William Farkas, Ohio secretary of the Socialist-Labor party, said steps to counteract the denial likely would be taken.

southeast of its starting point at Nanchang.

In the far south, in Kwangtung province, the Japanese claimed steady progress for their third major offensive moving northward from Canton along the Canton-Hankow railway.

While Chiang's armies struggled to stem the offensive, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told parliament in London that Britain and the United States were sending China all lease-lend war materials "which it is possible to supply" amid "other urgent requirements and the difficulties of transport."

The United States yesterday signed an agreement bringing China into the lease-lend bloc of Allies on virtually the same basis as Britain.

Other developments:

MADAGASCAR — France's Vichy government announced that British troops had started moving south on the 1,000-mile French island of Madagascar, off the coast of southeast Africa, and had occupied the town of Androvorano.

Androvorano lies 25 miles south of the big Diego Suarez naval base, captured by British seaborne troops in a surprise attack a month ago.

No fighting was mentioned in the announcement, but air activity was said to have increased on both sides.

AUSTRALIA — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's readquarters reported that Allied bombers had inflicted heavy new blows on Japanese barracks and other targets on enemy-held "invasion" bases north of Australia.

A communique said United Nations airmen set huge fires at Tulagi, deep in the Solomon Islands off Australia's northeast coast, and also attacked Rabaul, in New Britain, and Atamboea, Timor island.

BURMA—American "Flying Tiger" volunteers were officially credited with destroying 28 to 32 Japanese planes and making 12 major attacks with a loss of only six planes during May.

Dispatches said the AVG's bombing and strafing of Japanese troops attempting to cross the Salween river had given the Chinese time to establish proper defense lines to block Japanese spearheads jabbing into China's far southwest Yunnan province from Burma.

What Causes Your Constipation?

The super-refined foods we eat these days too often do not give us enough "bulk food." And medical science tells us that lack of sufficient "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation!

If that is your trouble, harsh cathartics and violent purges are, at best, only temporary remedies. How much better to get at the cause and correct it!

Why not make sure that you are getting the "bulk" you need—by eating Kellogg's All-Bran? All-Bran is a delicious, crispy cereal that millions of folks rely on. Eat All-Bran yourself—eat it daily—and drink plenty of water—not only to get regular but to keep regular. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

WHEN you consider the new products we've seen developed in our time...you'd think that just about everything worth while in the world was invented in the last few years.

It's kind of refreshing, for a change, to find out that some pleasant things in our modern life date way back to ancient days.

For instance—I read the other day about a piece of pottery some scientists dug up in Mesopotamia. On the pottery was a picture of two brewery workers making beer.

That picture was 6,000 years old!

You know, that's something to think about. Beer...6,000 years ago! I wonder if it tasted anything like the good lager beer I have sent up to the house every now and then.

Somewhere else, I read that beer came over on the Mayflower—in fact, if I remember right, a shortage of beer was one of the reasons why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock instead of somewhere else.

Interesting, isn't it, the way a simple, everyday beverage like beer can get tangled up with history!

Maybe it's because there's something fundamental and human about beer. It's the beverage of moderate, sensible, well-behaved people in every part of the world, and always has been.

Personally, I like it because it tastes so good and is so refreshing ... and I know I can trust it. And I get a thrill out of thinking that maybe some writer fellow back in ancient Egypt or ancient Mesopotamia, thousands of years ago, felt the same way about beer as I do.

It's a small world, after all ...

Those who believe they will have need for coal next winter are advised to lay in their supply now.

Instances are already noted of the job seeking the man, and sometimes finding him—much to his surprise.

Something that shouldn't be overlooked, in divorce petitions from now on, is a request for custody of the sugar rationing cards.

Mexico Joins United Nations

MEXICO'S entry into the war, as an addition to the United Nations, is not expected to mean much from the standpoint of increased military strength but is considered important in establishing unity of anti-Axis action on the North American continent and also stimulating eventual hemispheric solidarity, against which Argentina and Chile are still holdouts.

Germany's earlier unsuccessful effort to form an alliance with Mexico was undoubtedly prompted by the desire to establish a convenient base for operations against the United States when Hitler's grandiose dream of world conquest seemed more likely of accomplishment.

Sinking of Mexican ships, with loss of life, gave ample provocation for Mexico's entry into the war and the friendlier relations established between that country and the United States in recent years give promise of full co-operation in the war program.

The Mexican army totals only about 70,000 but it is indicated that this can be expanded quickly to 250,000, for use in guarding east and west coasts and preventing internal subversive activities.

Mexico's trade has heretofore been almost exclusively with the United States, and this may be expected to increase as a result of coordinating war action.

If, as is being hoped, the post-war period is marked by continuance of friendly relations with Mexico, further development of the highway system into and through that country, and an unselfish attitude of helpful co-operation maintained by the United States, both countries will benefit and Mexico's progress, socially and economically, may be greater than at any time in the past.

War Can't Be 'Sugar-Coated'

LIEUT. COL. PAUL W. THOMPSON of the U. S. corps of engineers, author of "Modern Battle," thinks most of the publicity for this war has been too gentle. He insists on "less sugar-coating of military operations, and speculating on grand strategy," and "a much stronger diet of military reporting in terms of 'how to take that hill'."

"Soldiers, not factories, will win the war," he says. "Malaya was lost to a foe with only fair equipment, but with the will to do or die. Germany crashed through nation after nation because it had tough soldiers who could march long and fight hard. The ground will be re-won the same way."

What he says seems truer of the British propaganda style than the American. Yet perhaps too many war programs and addresses in this country have been merely factual or artistic, rather than the basic life-and-death stuff of which these tremendous conflicts are made.

Newspaper's Circulation 'Frozen'

WHILE the idea of limiting production of some periodicals, to keep circulation within profitable bounds, is not entirely new, its application to a daily newspaper, as in the case of the Susquehanna, Pa., Transcript, is enough of a novelty to attract interest and cause comment.

Persons familiar with the processes and costs of newspaper publication realize that income from circulation falls far short of meeting production costs and that it is revenue from advertising that bridges the financial gap and makes possible a reasonable profit.

Deprived of customary revenue from a number of lines of advertising, due to wartime bans on manufacture and sale of consumer goods, newspapers and magazines have very generally found it necessary to increase subscription rates, eliminate news stand returns and hold press runs to the lowest possible minimum required to serve regular readers.

The publisher of the Susquehanna paper was probably justified in his conclusion that, under present conditions, any circulation growth would merely mean a loss which could not be offset by adding to advertising revenues, and that his obligation does not extend further than to continue service to present subscribers.

An odd situation may develop if adoption of the idea is extended to the point of starting a "waiting list" of applicants for a place on the subscription list whenever there is a vacancy.

Custom Based On Superstition

SCIENTISTS have just settled a June problem that has bothered many people: "Why do persons who ordinarily behave politely go wild at weddings?" Why, for instance, do they throw old shoes and rice at the bride? They would never dream of acting so at a luncheon or bridge party. Nor would anyone behave in this way at a funeral, which is after all not so much more serious than a wedding. How do people get that way?

Historians of popular customs have found the answer, and it is rather unexpected. Such actions, they say, do not rise out of a feeling of jollification. They go back to an old superstition, the fear of evil spirits.

Such spirits are everywhere, according to primitive or uneducated people. The Chinese coolie on the Yellow river continually zigzags his boat about to fool the demon lying it wait for it ahead. Evil spirits are a danger at all times, and above all at weddings. There they gather in force to do their stuff. The only thing to do is to scare them away. Hence the old shoes and the general hullabaloo, noisier than in our day, with which our pioneer ancestors used to celebrate a wedding.

The old fear is forgotten, but the custom remains. So when people cut up at a June wedding, they are acting just as their ancestors did thousands of years ago.

It is reported from at least one college that the entire senior class is already signed up for jobs—which seems to make it necessary for some of the young fellows to "find themselves" between times.

Congressmen do not seem to realize that economy, like charity, should begin at home.

THE HOME FRONT CAN TAKE IT

Allies Staging 'War of Nerves'

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—During the period known as the "phony war," before Germany overran the Low Countries and Norway, and short-circuited the Maginot Line, Hitler was doing to the French and British what Roosevelt and Churchill are now trying to do to Hitler.

No one knew, then, what Hitler was going to do. So Hitler utilized the time by finding out precisely what the French and British—not to mention the Belgians and Dutch, would do in every possible contingency.

What he did was to mass troops and tanks and planes, as though for an attack, at some point on say the Belgian border. He would keep them there, in apparent readiness, long enough for the British and French to find out about it. Meanwhile the terrified Belgians or Dutch, as the case might be, would maneuver their defensive forces precisely as they would if the attack were real. So Hitler then knew what to expect if he attacked there.

A week or so later he would suddenly begin the same sort of formation for attack at a point 50 miles further up the border, this time possibly on the Dutch frontier, if the former one had been on the Belgian. Then he would find out what the troop movements would be on the other side if the attack were at that point.

OVER the many months of the "phony war" Hitler thus acquired a vast amount of information as to just what to expect when "Der Tag" came. There was no way for the other side to acquire similar information. They were just waiting.

As a matter of fact their peoples, those in Belgium and Holland, were very much divided. Many of them thought they would be able to maintain their neutrality throughout the war. It is of record that Hitler sold guns to the Dutch for gold, and then captured the guns later on.

Naturally the parallel is not exact. There is no maneuvering of an invasion force up and down a frontier, while the helpless victims on the other side, hoping to maintain peace, scramble for a defensive distribution of their forces. But the effect is very similar, from a military standpoint.

News is allowed to leak out—in fact it is broadcast—that a "very large" American expeditionary force has landed in Northern Ireland. A few days later it is announced officially that another large Canadian force has landed in Britain.

We do not know precisely how large this United States force now in the British Isles (counting Ulster as part of that category) may be. We only know it is sizable. But there is little doubt that the German high command is much better informed on this and other details than the American newspaper readers and radio listeners. It is assumed by officials here that Berlin knows precisely how many United States troops are waiting there for the "second front," and what their equipment and training is. It is also assumed that Berlin knows how many Canadian troops are in Britain, and how many British troops are available.

WHAT Berlin does NOT know is where this force is going to strike, or when. It might be anywhere from the North Cape, or beyond to Murmansk, down to Italy. The air raids, with increasing intensity, and the Commando, raids, growing more and more daring, keep muddying the water, and acquiring information for the United Nations. It behooves the Germans to be ready everywhere.

Naturally the Nazis figure on getting a little advance tip—when the troops actually embark. But they cannot find out what Roosevelt and Churchill have not themselves decided, or at least have not told anyone that they have decided.

The movement could take place very speedily once the orders were issued. And even the commanding officers might not know the destination until sealed orders had been opened, at sea. All the Nazi spies could report might be that the expedition had started.

Talent for Dying

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WILLIAM WINTER, the newscaster, gave the world an immortal phrase when he spoke of the young people as well as the old who are fighting this battle for Democracy. They have, he said, a great talent for dying.

Strange words. They may frighten you, even shock you—yet they go home to the root of every lift. For we are all dying, little by little, every day we live. With every change, we die . . . with every sacrifice. With every step forward we cast off something of the old life and take on something of the new. Life is a long succession of little deaths.

It is not the zest for lustful living that counts most. It is the capacity for taking that life in one's stride and going on valiantly to the adventure which lies ahead.

Every day we die a little. And if you can't die splendidly you're done for already. All around you there are people who have never had a "talent for dying." They have tried to play safe . . . they have refused to change their ways or notions . . . they rejoice in the thought they are living. Actually they are as dead as something on its slab in the morgue. All they need is a tombstone.

"A talent for dying." If I could make but one prayer, it would be that.

God—

Give me the courage to forget my yesterdays

And welcome the challenge of today;

Give me the gallantry to discard

Needless fear and remorse,

Childish caution and pettiness,

And give me wings

Wherewith to brave

Those far horizons

Which lie beyond our common existence.

Let me live life splendidly—

But be ready to give up life laughingly—

And always, whatever the hazards,

Help me to realize

That life is a little thing

Beside the tall avenues of death.

So take my heart and strengthen it

For whatever may lie ahead

Whether it be

In these four walls

I call my home

Or on some foreign battlefield.

This is my prayer.

Amen.

Murder on the Highway.

The wanton murder of Stuart Smith of Salina, Kas., by two hitchhikers to whom he had given a "lift," rivets once more the lesson that the motorist who takes strangers along the highway into his car is running a very real and needless danger.

It is a horrible story of callous disregard of every human tenet that the hitchhikers told. For that identical reason it is the more valuable as a lesson to every motorist.

Warnings against giving rides to strangers have been issued by nearly every responsible agency having to do with highway traffic. Hitchhikers are sometimes deserving, but there is no way to tell it. You take a possible robber or murderer in your car whenever you stop for a hitchhiker you do not know.

There is no relation between giving rides to transients on the road and "co-operative riding" to save tires and gasoline in going to or from work or elsewhere. The hitchhiker is, and always will be, a possible menace. Pass him up.—Kansas City Times.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

War Department Drops Objection To Prosecuting Monopoly Cases

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It has been obscured by the battles of Kharkov, Burma and Kinhwa, but behind the scenes, a battle just as important domestically has been raging between Secretary of War Stimson and trust-busting Thurman Arnold over whether the big corporations which monopolized war materials with Germany should be punished, or permitted to continue their monopolies.

Secretary Stimson doesn't want these big firms bothered with anti-trust suits, and some weeks ago wrote a letter to the White House, demanded that they be stopped. Thurman Arnold, he said, was playing into Hitler's hands by nagging the big companies while they were filling war orders.

Roosevelt, grinning, gave the letter to Attorney General Biddle. Biddle, also grinning, gave it to Arnold. And Arnold wrote Stimson a letter which nearly raised the roof of the war department. He pointed out that there was no use fighting Hitler if U. S. industry was going to practice the same kind of monopolistic, cut-throat tactics as Nazi business.

Temporarily, however, the war department won out. The justice department finally agreed to hold up prosecution of certain cases, among them General Electric's fluorescent lamps, on the ground that General Electric officials were so busy with war production they did not have time to appear in court.

They Found Time.

BUT suddenly Thurman Arnold learned that although General Electric did not have time to be prosecuted, they did have time to prosecute on their own another company, High Grade Sylvania, for alleged violation of G. E.'s monopoly of fluorescent lighting.

So Arnold stepped into this private legal battle and asked that the government be made a party to the suit. The effect of this was to contend that General Electric had no right to its patent monopoly, and that High Grade Sylvania was entitled to manufacture fluorescent lamps.

Arnold also told General Electric that he intended to indict them every month.

Next day, Arnold got a phone call from the war department.

"We withdraw our objection to prosecuting General Electric," was the message.

General Electric had decided that it was better to face one government suit than to have the government intervene in its private suits. So it told its friend, the war department, to throw in the sponge.

Insiders consider it the most significant anti-trust victory in some time.

White House Barracks.

AS CORDELL HULL looks out of the windows of his office, he sees trees being trucked away from the park just south of the state department, and a steam-shovel digging foundations for something.

A kibitzer watching the steam-shovel shouted to the operator: "What's going up here?"

"Huh?" said the operator.

"What are you building?"

"I don't know," he replied. "I never heard nobody say."

The answer is that barracks are to be built here, to house soldiers detailed to guard the White House, state department, and treasury buildings. At present, the men have to come all the way from Fort Myer, across the river.

Flanked by the state department, the White House, the Corcoran Gallery of Art, and the lawns that sweep up to the Washington monument, these will be the most exclusive and richly located quarters in Washington. Many a high-powered business man, turned away from the best hotels, would give his shirt for a bunk in such a spot.

Rank Doesn't Count.

ONE of the best things efficient Gen. Allan Gullion did after becoming provost marshal was to bring Gen. Pelham D. (Happy) Glassford from his Arizona ranch and place him in charge of the army's "Internal Security." This means the protection of industrial supplies, warehouses, equipment, etc., inside the United States.

Considering the number of aliens in the country, and the opportunities for sabotage, this is one of the toughest and most important jobs in the home army.

To thousands of World war veterans, Gen. "Happy" Glassford will always be remembered as a friend. He was Washington's police chief during the march of the "bonus army," dealt compassionately with the penniless veterans, set up soup kitchens, raised money to feed them.

Glassford holds the rank of brigadier general, retired, in the regular army, but was so anxious to get back into service that he accepted a much lower rank, that of lieutenant colonel in the new "Army of the United States."

Many other retired regular army officers are doing the same, including James E. Fechet, former chief of air corps, who retired with the rank of major general but is now a colonel. The other day Fechet telephoned Glassford and said:

'Hap, have you been promoted yet?"

"Yes," replied Glassford, "I was just raised from the rank of lieutenant colonel to colonel."

"O.K.," said Fechet. "Your son was about to be made a lieutenant colonel, and I didn't want to promote him until I was sure his old man was one rank ahead of him."

Note—Glassford comes from an old military family. His brother, Vice Admiral William Glassford, commanded the U. S. fleet in the southwest Pacific. Their father, a regular army officer in the Indian wars, at one time was attached to the U. S. weather bureau in Washington. When Mrs. Grover Cleveland called up to ask how the weather would be for a White House garden party next day, Glassford, senior, predicted balmy weather. Next day there was a terrific spring blizzard, and he decided to go back to fighting Indians.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Patrons who wander into the Latin Quarter usually leave the place rubbing their eyes, as if they can't quite believe what they have seen.

I don't blame them. But if you are a little dazed, think how the five girls in that Apache number must feel. Maybe they are too numb to feel.

I'll explain by pointing out that the Latin Quarter is a nightclub. It's where the old Cotton Club used to be. When you've got anything like a Latin Quarter, you can be sure you've got some Apache dancers.

THAT'S what I'm getting to. There are seven in the act. Five girls, two men. The boss Apache is Frank Mazzone. The act lasts about 12 minutes, but while it does last you think the Eastern Front is being blitzed.

Apaches are those light-footed Don Juans from the gutters of Paris who beat their dolls twice a day, wrest their coin from them, and in turn are adored by the mistreated femmes.

This Apache act starts that way too. It grows into an acrobatic avalanche that sees the Apaches beating their blonde belles over the head, kicking their teeth out, climbing up stairways and being shot to death in turn, and as they are shot their bodies topple off high platforms, crashing into wine casks, demolishing tables. I forgot to say that two of the dancers have chairs broken over their heads. The chairs fly into a thousand pieces.

IS THIS on the level? Almost 99 percent of it is. True, the chairs and the table are pieces of trick furniture that will collpase under real pressure, but then consider this fact, Frank Mazzone has already lost 14 girls. They've been hurt, too badly hurt to continue work. They've had arms broken, legs twisted, and slight concussions. He himself has been in the hospital. He thinks no dance is worthwhile unless it has realism. One of the blondes in the act now is deaf and dumb, but not through the rigors of her profession. At the conclusion of the act the dancers are so exhausted and breathless they are barely able to drag themselves off stage. They can't even say thank you for the applause.

What I have described concerns only about 12 minutes of a full-scale revue in the best French manner. Your old friend Emile Boreo and his Parade of the Wooden Soldiers is back. It's the Folies Bergeres and the old French Casino all over again. Which is all right. For me, in any case. There is a place in New York for a show of this timber.

Health Questions Are Answered.

—By DR. CLENDENING

E. L.:—Would arthritis cause one's teeth to become sensitive to hot or cold drinks? What should be done for sensitive teeth?

Answer: Sensitive teeth of the kind you describe usually mean some infection or derangement of the teeth and instead of arthritis causing this, it is not unlikely that this causes the arthritis. The only thing to be done for sensitive teeth is to have a thorough dental examination, including X-rays, and clear up the fundamental trouble.

M. L.:—Can diphtheria in childhood cause physical weakness in later life?

Answer: Yes, one of the rare but unfortunate sequelae of diphtheria is a form of paralysis or semi-paralysis which may affect any muscle in the body.

Y. T.:—If an adult person does not drink milk, do the teeth become softer and more likely to decay?

Answer: The value of milk in the prevention of tooth decay is simply that it furnishes calcium and phosphorus. Inasmuch as these are present in other foods, especially vegetables and fruits, they can be substituted for the milk.

M. M.:—Would you kindly tell me if there is any danger of catching tuberculosis from a person who has had it. She was in a sanatorium for nearly three years.

Answer: The common method of the spread of tuberculosis is from an infected person to an uninfected person. This however seldom takes place in adult life.

Barley Field

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FROM the highest slope that guards the northern entrance of our valley, I looked down upon my neighbor's barley field . . . and watched the gentle evening breeze sweep over the quiet expanse in continuous slow waves. I saw the groups of heads bend down and up and then, without a sound, I knew the muffled rasping of one spike against another.

This crop of grain is one that man has cultivated for more than five thousand years. Perhaps no richer sight did Moses' fading eyes behold in the vale in the land of Moab before the Lord had dug his sepulchre and laid him there to rest. Perhaps such was the field that Naomi and Ruth looked far across the desert to find and finally reached when they came to the fields of Boaz. Barley fields — through this shy and lovely maid—bring our minds to the lineage of David and to the Christ, himself.

Barley grains are found, still, in the ancient tombs of Egypt; among the ruins of the lake dwellers; within the aged pyramids.

There is no grain that was and is so widely scattered over the surface of the earth. It is grown extensively in Norway, Finland, Sweden, Russia, all within the shadow of the Arctic circle. Other varieties thrive in the Ganges valley, northern Africa and Timbuctoo. It is cultivated in Abyssinia, the Himalaya region, and in Tibet at an an altitude of 15,000 feet.

The crop needs alkaline soil and its roots, like oats, grows near the surface. In the state of California, the nitrogen content is lower than in barley grown in central and northern United States.

It is substantial food for man and for domestic animals. Already there is the hint of clean white ripeness that will lead all other grains to early harvest. The landscape has a livelier, more varied interest and color because of it.

A wise mother quail calls her brood together along its edge. And I, who have no barley in my fields, look down from the hill and have already reaped where I have not sown . . . the rhythmic gracious peace of the barley field.

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XXVI

Stone went to Hugh's apartment. Foo Chow let him in.

"Mr. McCleod expects me," he said.

"Yes, sir. Mr. McCleod is in the little smoking room. He bids me take you there."

In a moment Stone was in the presence of Hugh, Detective Captain Raynor, and the helpful Sergeant Colby.

"I felt I must look in," he said to the policemen. "Tell me the details, Raynor."

"I'll tell you," Hugh spoke in a constrained voice. "I know what happened as well as if I had seen it done! Ogden Murray killed my sister, and no police investigation and no detective work can change that fact."

"But we have to search for proofs," Raynor said. "It seems to me Stone, that this murder and Mrs. McCleod's were by the same hand."

"Then Ogden Murray killed Alma, too," Hugh's voice was low and intense. "I have suspected it. Prove it, Stone, and free young Herrick. I never really thought he was the one."

Stone looked at him curiously. He had taken it for granted that McCleod believed in Herrick's guilt. But, he thought, the man is nearly beside himself with this new sorrow that has come to him, I must not judge him.

"What we think or what we suspect doesn't matter much," Raynor said. "It is proof we want. You say Mr. Murray was here this afternoon, Mr. McCleod?"

"Yes, he was." The words seemed to be addressed to Stone. "You left here between three and four, Mr. Stone. Murray came about four, and was closeted with Emmy in her own sitting-room for a half hour or so. I get this from Dunn, Emmy's butler. Dunn let Murray in, and let him out. Dunn knows Murray was there from four to half past."

"Who discovered Miss Emmy?"

"Dunn did," Hugh went on." He expected Emmy would summon him for orders after Murray left, but Emmy didn't ring for him, and after a while, he knocked at her door. There was no answer. He found poor Emmy ——"

"Yes, Stone," Raynor said, "the butler found Miss McCleod dead in her chair."

"You say she was smothered?"

"I can't say exactly, until I learn the autopsy report," Raynor replied, "but there was no shot, nor any visible wound."

"You are going to interview Mr. Murray?" Stone asked.

"At once."

"I saw him this afternoon," Stone told them. "At about five o'clock or shortly after. He did not look like a man who had just committed murder."

McCleod looked at him. "I should think," he said, slowly, "both you men must have had experiences that went to prove if a man can commit a ghastly murder, he must have enough will power to carry it off afterward."

"Not always," Raynor said. "A murderer is keyed up with his motive, whatever it may be, and afterward, reaction sets in, and he is often lacking in will power and even self-control. I have seen them."

"Then who could have killed Emmy?" Hugh's voice was almost a wail. "I am not a weakling, but this added misery is more than I can stand. But for father, I would go back to Scotland."

"There is much to be done," Raynor said. "The men from the homicide bureau are upstairs now, but I doubt they find much in the way of clues."

"I must go now," Stone said, rising. "I am engaged on Brand Herrick's affairs, and I have to be in Chicago tomorrow morning. I hope to be back soon. I will see you again, Mr. McCleod."

"Do, Mr. Stone. I would be glad of your help. I know you and Captain Raynor are good friends."

Once in the street, Stone beckoned a taxi and gave Miss Martha Malcolm's address. He went there without waiting to ask if she would see him.

He gave his name to the maid who opened the door, and in a few minutes Martha Malcolm, a gentle, dignified woman, was with him.

"I am trying to trace a young woman by the name of Una Deane," he said. "Can you tell me where to look for her?"

"I wish you could tell me," Miss Malcolm said, sadly. "I, too, am trying to find her."

"She is missing, then?"

"Yes, Mr. Stone. Though I can tell you the circumstances of her disappearance, I fear that is of small use in finding her."

"Tell me, please."

"Una Deane is in our school," Miss Malcolm said, "and is one of our most promising art pupils. Moreover, she is a fine girl, high spirited but docile and industrious. She longs to become a real artist. Of her private life I know little; she boarded with a Mrs. Coleman, on Lexington avenue. Three days ago there came to the school, during work hours, a taxi driver, who said a gentleman had requested him to drive to the school, ask for Miss Deane, give her a note, which he handed to the driver, and then, he said, Miss Deane would go with him to the address the note indicated.

"The note, evidently written by a man, purported to be from my brother, and it said I was very ill, having had a stroke, and that I was most anxious to see Miss Deane at once, and for her please to come with the taximan. The note was given to Miss Deane, who insisted on starting right off with the driver. One of the maids who went to the door with Miss Deane, said the taxi driver seemed a decent sort. That was the last we ever saw or heard of Miss Deane. Oh, please try to find her, Mr. Stone."

"Indeed, I will try, Miss Malcolm. Can any one describe the man who came for her?"

"Not more definitely than I have told you. We have no doubt he was a regular driver, and had no purpose but to obey the person who sent him upon the errand."

"He did not bring Miss Deane to this house?"

"No; that's why we are so worried. Where did he take her? Who is he working for? Why should any one want to harm that lovely girl? Una held herself rather aloof from companions and I feel sure she had no men friends. But somebody made up that story about my being ill and so lured her away from the school."

"Thank God I have found you, Miss Malcolm. You know Ogden Murray?"

"Oh, yes; he took quite a little notice of Una at a party I took her to at the McCleods."

"You and she left the party before the tragedy occurred?"

"Yes, I am thankful to say, we did."

"You have communicated with Miss Deane's boarding house?"

"Yes. Mrs. Coleman, who seems a good woman, is worried about Una, but she can give us no help."

"Was your brother with you at the time?"

"No, he was out of town. That's what first made me think it was queer."

"Miss Malcolm, I hope to find the girl. Tell me, Miss Deane had front teeth that were a little apart from one another?"

"Yes. She told me her mother's teeth were the same."

"Thank you; everything you tell me is a help. Now, I must be going. I will let you know of—I hope—my success."

Stone then went to see Clarence Bliss.

He told him of Emmy's death, and they discussed the question of telling Brand Herrick of it.

"I think yes," Bliss said. "I hope the finding of the murderer of Miss Emmy will show up the murderer of Mrs. McCleod. If they are one and the same, as Raynor seems to think, then it is not Herrick. Still, if it is someone else, whom they would not suspect in Alma's case, then—do we want to rouse Brand's hopes, falsely?"

"He should be told," Stone said. "If there is a gleam he ought to know it, even if it is temporary."

"Tell me if you have a hint about Jenny Wiley."

"Well, yes. But don't tell Brand that. My hint is so faint. If my helper in Chicago, young Cobb, hadn't found out she was an art student I doubt if I'd ever got on her trail. . . . Good night old chap. I'm on my way to Chicago. My work there will, I think, finish off the case, for better or worse."

"I'll bet on the better," said Bliss.

Cobb met him on his arrival with a smiling face. In Cobb's hotel room, they had a talk.

"I know where Wiley is," Cobb announced, triumphantly. Stone expressed due surprise and pleasure.

"I did just what you told me," the youth went on. "I got hold of the chief and said I was workin' for you. And did he fall! Well, he told me to come back in an hour. And then he gave me the dope. Wiley, under the name of Abe Connors is in this here jail—I wrote it all down for you. His time won't be up for a month. I could have seen him. But you didn't tell me to do that, so I just marked time till you got here."

Then Cobb recounted his sessions with Wiley's wife and with the terrible Ben Monk.

"You think Monk is a pal of Wiley's?" Stone said.

"Oh, yes, sir. I'm sure of that. He goes to see Wiley in jail, and I got a notion he's there quite frequent on his own account."

"I wonder if I'd better scrape acquaintance with Ben Monk before I see Wiley."

"The feller's gone outa town for a coupla days."

"How do you know?"

"I've made friends with a guy that lives near Ben Monk, and this lad is keen for a quarter any day in the week. I get quite a few pointers from him. Monk is away for two or three days and he has a sort of stand-in who keeps his place goin'. This is a spindly young chap. He don't pretend to be Monk, he just watches out. I think they're up to something shady. The substitute guy—Colly, they call him—sometimes drops in at the jail to see Wiley in visitin' hours. Mr. Stone, there's some double crossing going on. Monk did something for Wiley, in New York, and it had to do with some girl, something like kidnapping."

"How do you know this much?"

"I was told by this feller that tells me things and I pay him. Lott, his name is. He says Monk is up to something that is driving Wiley frantic. Lott says Colly is trying to get the girl's address out of Wiley, but he can't 'cause the guards listen in all the time, and Wiley won't tell it if they are there."

"Cobb, I believe you've got something there! When is the visiting hour?"

"Right about now, sir. You'd have to hustle."

Stone started off.

GOVERNMENTAL REGULATIONS

(NOW IN EFFECT)

REQUIRE PROMPT PAYMENT OF RETAIL STORE CHARGE ACCOUNTS

All customers who enjoy the privilege of "open" or 30-day charge accounts with Retail Stores are hereby notified that all stores must abide by uniform, nation-wide credit policies, as specified by Regulation "W" dated May 6, 1942, issued by the Federal Reserve System and based upon an executive order by President Roosevelt. Retail Stores failing to abide with the provisions of the Credit Regulations are liable to severe penalties.

Bills rendered June 1, covering charge purchases made in May (or prior) should be paid in June. Customers who do not pay such bills in June have only 10 days of grace (until July 10) before account is "In Default" under the new governmental ruling.

When a 30-day Charge Account is "In Default" the store must refuse to extend further credit for listed articles to the customer until the default is cured (corrected) in accord with governmental regulations.

Provision has been made, however for the payment (or curing) of accounts which are in default under the regulations. This will be explained by any of our members, the majority of whose Credit Sales are now controlled by Government regulation.

Don't Forget, You May Still Use Your Installment Account.

Purchasers who desire a deferred payment plan for sales carrying a cash price of $6 or more (including all retail sales taxes) shall sign a contract on the terms of 33⅓% down in cash, payments of $5.00 per month, or $1.25 per week. (Furniture and Pianos, 20% down).

Regulation "W" does not diminish the normal conveniences or privileges of retail store 30-day charge accounts that are paid when due. The prime purpose of the regulation is to put a definite and positive limitation upon the excessive time in which an "open" account may remain unpaid.

The ideal way to keep accounts in good standing is to follow established custom and form the habit of paying charge accounts in full within the government regulations.

Stunning Swim Suits Plentiful

By SUSAN BARDEN

The chances for beauty on the beaches is excellent this year, regardless of priorities. Wool and rubber shortages have only added new impetus to the already important trend toward rayon fabrics for swim suits. The result is a really stunning collection of practical and flattering, budget-priced suits in a surprisingly wide range of tine fabrics.

You may take your choice of a softly draped and molded dressmaker suit of fine rayon crepe or sleek rayon jersey, or be gaily perky in a trim bare midriff halter and shorts costume of brisk acetate rayon sharkskin. You'll also see frivolous little ruffled suits in crisp taffeta as well as beautifully tailored princess styles in such rich rayon materials as the failles and shantungs, which appear in exciting colors as well as fashionable black.

Soft tailoring is very much in evidence in this season's beachwear, with strong dressmaker influence throughout. Both two-piece and one-piece styles are popular. Most of the two-piece models show bare midriffs and are cut with nice wide waistbands and smooth fitting tops. The one shown in one of the above pictures is a particularly attractive type. It is cut deftly for figure flattery, and is made of supple rayon jersey in a bright print design. The soft draping at the front of the bra-top is complemented by the unpressed pleats in the brief skirt.

The one-piece suits are appearing in many versions of the slim-fitted and flared silhouette. Princess styling, which is flattering to both slender and full figures, is a favorite in both printed and solid colors in such sea-going rayon fabrics asshantung, faille, flat crepe and sharkskin. The one pictured is made of fine spun rayon shantung. It is a princess swimsuit with frosty white scallops at neck and hem accenting the high style black. It is designed with slimming lines and has a bra-topped bodice, slender sashed waistline and a gracefully flared skirt.

The third suit features the long torso line. It reflects the new vogue for fluid molded styling. This is a very feminine version made of spun rayon in a nubbed linen-like weave. It has a little girl ruffles and is in a becoming aquamarine shade.

C. L. of C. Has Social Meeting

Nine tables of card games were in play when the Catholic Ladies of Columbia had a social meeting in the club rooms in the Bird building last evening. Prizes in bridge were won by Mrs. A. E. Weakland and Mrs. V. F. Montgomery. Miss Carrie Keifer and Mrs. Martin Vogel were winners in five hundred and the door prize went to Mrs. D. L. Maxwell.

Lunch was served at small tables. The rooms were decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Joseph Pilot served as chairlady. At 6:30 o'clock tonight dinner will be served to the tournament players in the clubrooms. Next on the schedule will be an important business meeting on June 16.

NEEDLES AND PINS.

Nine members of the Needles and Pins group of the 4-H club met recently at the home of Miss Ethel Ovenkirk, Springfield township. The entertainment consisted of singing and dancing after which refreshments were served. Plans were made for the officers to attend the 4-H meeting on Saturday. June 8 will be the next meeting.

Program Given For Sisterhood

Following the donor luncheon of Temple Emanuel Sisterhood at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Tuesday an enjoyable program was presented. Mrs. Samuel Lockshin introduced Mrs. George W. Hall who entertained with piano selections and Louis Bromfield, guest speaker. Mrs. Hall played "Polonnaise," by Chopin, "Lotus Land," by Cyril Scott, and a Chopin waltz. Mr. Bromfield's subject was "Leon Blum, French Politician."

Final business session of the year was conducted by Mrs. Norman Kann. Fifty-eight members and guests were in attendance. Hostesses, all of whom were from Ashland, were Mrs. A. Strauss, Mrs. L. Greenberger, Mrs. N. Barnett, Mrs. I. Schultz and Mrs. S. Morganstern.

CLUB GOES NATIONAL.

At the meeting of the Blue Star Mothers' club last evening in the American Legion home, the 35 members present voted to join the national chapter and pledged their support of the USO. The home office of the Blue Star Mothers is in Flint, Mich., and Cleveland is the leading city for the Ohio district. Mrs. C. C. Rowe, temporary chairman, presided over meeting and made plans for the next one on June 16, at the American Legion for which time they hope to have their charter.

MRS. CUSIC HOSTESS.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Typographical union met last evening at the home of Mrs. E. P. Cusic, 171 Westwood avenue. Mrs. Lillian Powell was in charge of the 11 women present. After a business discussion, hearts were played with the prizes being won by Mrs. Harold Bracey, Mrs. Walter Hartwig and Mrs. Emma Fisher. Luncheon was served at a small table. July 7 was set for the date of the next meeting to be a covered dish supper at the home of Mrs. Marion Day, 75 Bartley avenue.

Proposals Flattering To Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

About two weeks ago this column published a letter in which a young soldier said he had met a girl who, he thought, cared as much for him as he did for her. Although our soldier wondered if she would be willing to wait for him for the duration, he had lacked the courage to ask her.

Several correspondents have answered this young man's letter. Here's one from a girl who feels especially qualified to give the correct answer, as she finds herself in the same position as this soldier's sweetheart:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"The letter in your column, signed 'Uniform Frank', is especially interesting to me, and I hope this letter may help him to make a decision. When I began writing to a young friend in the army last June, I was not in love with him. Indeed, I felt I would never fall in love, but my soldier-friend's letters became more and more interesting until finally I found myself just living for them.

"He spoke of his feeling for me long before I ever admitted to myself that I cared for him. But now I love him as deeply as I can ever love anyone. He is on the west coast and I am in the deep south, yet space does not separate us.

"I would have felt it the greatest honor and privilege if he had thought it well to ask me to wait for him. I shall wait for him, but how happy I should have been if he had only told me himself that he wanted me to wait.

"To this soldier who signs himself 'Uniform Frank' please let me say, by all means ask your girl to wait if you want her to be happy. She may be waiting, longing for those very words to give her courage to keep on. And let me offer this soldier and his girl all the happiness that I hope may come to me.

"Waiting."

Please let me whisper a word of wisdom to all men, whether uniformed or not. From the beginning of time, every woman is flattered by a declaration of love, and twice flattered by a proposal.

It's also a woman's privilege to refuse. Bear this in mind whether you're wearing a uniform or tweeds. When you ask a girl to marry you, even if she turns you down, you will be forever enshrined in her memory as a man of excellent taste.

What better evidence of discrimination can you offer than selecting her, of all women, as your desired life companion? Don't be bashful about proposing; women are human and love to be admired. Remember, also, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THIS TIME Jack did not start at my mention of Ruth Hayes' name. Instead he leaned forward in his chair and looked at me intently.

"Is this your opinion speaking, or have you any evidence to support that statement?" he asked.

"Don't mistake me," he added quickly. "I am presenting no brief for Ruth Hayes. Instead, I am inclined to agree with your conclusions. But your manner tells me that you know something bearing very definitely on this. Will you tell me what it is?"

"Gladly," I told him, and forthwith repeated from memory the contents of the vicious letter the "wilderness woman" had sent to Katharine, telling her that she and Jack loved each other.

Bickett Enraged.

"She expressly stipulated," I said, "that Katharine must not write you, adding that you did not know she was writing, but that you were suffering so terribly because of your love for her that she was taking matters into her own hands."

The imprecation which broke from Jack's lips was venomously picturesque.

"Is that letter in existence. Can I get hold of it?"

"No. Katharine destroyed it after showing it to me. Why do you want it?"

"I want to stuff it down that lying friend's throat," he said savagely. "What was Katharine's reaction?"

"The same as yours when you heard Ruth's tale of Hal Meredith," I answered. "She thought the woman was lying, and ignored the letter.

Tells of Her Letter.

"I counselled her to write to you and tell you about it," I went on, "but she refused. Then, I am ashamed to say, I meddled, and wrote you a letter on my own account—the letter to which I referred back there in Connecticut, which you never received.

"I told you in my letter exactly what had happened, and quoted Ruth's letter in full. But I never received any answer, and after awhile I began to wonder, as I am sure Katharine did, if there might not be some foundation for Ruth's statement."

He put his head in his hands, and a stiffled groan told of the torment he was enduring. When his eyes met mine again, he put a question which I had dreaded.

"I must ask you this, Margaret, for I know you will tell me the truth. Was there any slightest foundation for what Ruth told me? I cannot blame Katharine if there was, but I must know."

"If you mean by that whether Katharine's emotions of pity and admiration for Hal and deep wifely love for you ever changed places, then my answer is an unequivocal 'No.' That was pure, malevolent invention on the part of Ruth Hayes, and so was that touch about Katherine contemplating marriage with Hal.

"Here is the truth," I said, "and I know you are man enough, generous enough, to take it. Hal Meredith has been in love with Katharine from the moment he first met her.

"You have heard the story of the crazed girl whose mental state nobody suspected until after her death—the girl who was the daughter of the professor who was Hal's benefactor, and who cozened her father into believing that she faced motherhood because of a married man. The old man begged Hal to marry his daughter to save her reputation, and when, after the marriage, Hal found out the truth, it was too late.

"Hal knew that knowledge of the daughter's baseness would kill his old benefactor, who had condoned what he thought was the result of a love tragedy and a man's perfidy. So Hal went on, but never forgetting Katharine. Then, after his wife's death which you just mentioned, Meredith went abroad for a year, so that there might be no shadow of scandal against Katharine and him.

"But, from that time on Jack, Hal never ceased to let Katharine know that he is in the background waiting for her, whenever she shall 'come to her senses,' as he once told me, and realize that a husband who habitually absents himself from her cannot give her the place in the world and the happiness which would be showered upon her by a man who always has worshipped her.'

HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 4

THERE SHOULD be exceptional opportunities for attaining the ambitions and increasing the capital, credit and business standing as well as personal popularity and prestige. Influential friends, those in power, and relatives as well, may assist in furthering opportunities for obtaining this growth, expansion and general condition of satisfaction and pleasure. Travel, change, agencies and professional skill and ingenuity may aid this ambition.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of excellent prospects for securing their most cherished and exalted ambitions, whether these be in spiritual, romantic, professional aims or business, financial or speculative enterprise. All are under excellent stimuli for expansion, productiveness and progress. But there are certain channels of duplicity, impetuous or reckless moves to be handled prudently. Travel, change and agents promise profit as well as much pleasure.

A child born on this day should be richly endowed with much creative skill and versatility, fitting it for an influential professional career, and fulfilled ambitions.

Evaporated Milk Good to Keep In Stock

By BETSY NEWMAN

In the list of foods that the family should have on hand, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, Director of Defense, Health and Welfare Service, listed evaporated milks. Sixteen cans should be kept on hand by a family of four, Mr. McNutt's list read.

Today's Menu.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Crackers or Toast
Stewed Figs or Prunes
Bread and Butter
Orange Bread Pudding
Milk Tea

Cream of Tomato Soup.

2 slices onion
1 stalk celery
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon minced parsley
⅛ teaspoon pepper or paprika
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
½ bay leaf
¾ cup water
1 recipe evaporated milk cream foundation
1 teaspoon salt

Simmer chopped onion, chopped celery, tomatoes, minced parsley and seasonings with water 20 minutes or until very soft. Put through puree sieve. Blend gradually with cream foundation and reheat.

Cream Foundation for Soups.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1¾ cups evaporated milk
2¼ cups water or white stock

Melt butter in double boiler, add flour and seasonings and blend thoroughly. Add evaporated milk and water slowly, stirring until mixture thickens. Allow to cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally.

Orange Bread Pudding.

1 tablespoon melted butter
1 cup fine bread crumbs
3 eggs, separated
1¼ cups evaporated milk
1¼ cups water
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup syrup or honey
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Grated rind 1 orange
Juice 2 oranges

Pour melted butter over bread crumbs and mix with fork. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, evaporated milk, water, ¼ cup sugar, syrup, salt, fruit juices and orange rind. Pour into buttered pudding dish, cover with meringue made by beating egg whites until stiff and adding the remaining ¼ cup sugar. Bake 30 minutes in slow oven (300 degrees F.). Serves 8.

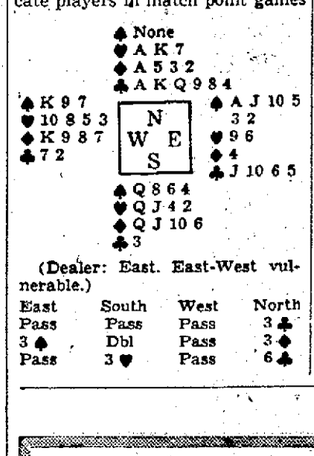
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BID THE SUREST SLAM

A slam contract is sometimes made by a player with a four-card suit who has only three trumps in the dummy. Trying to do that, though, is dangerous and unsound business if there is another suit available which affords a better chance of safety. Duplicate players in match point games are the worst offenders in violation of this simple principle, as many of them reach out to get the slightly higher score furnished by a major suit instead of a more likely one to be gained by selecting a minor.



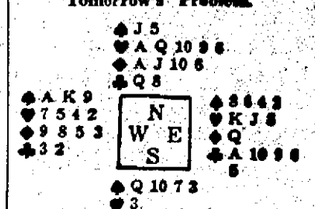
(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	3♣
3♠	Dbl	Pass	3♦
Pass	3♥	Pass	6♣

Since North heard his opponent bid Hearts, following his earlier business double of 1-Spade, he was ready to slam this hand. He was in a duplicate tournament and hoped that by bidding the slam in Hearts, he could get a few extra match points. Just you try to figure out some way to make 6-Hearts against the holding of East and West. The declarer found out what you will, and was set.

At several other tables North put the contract into 6-Clubs, in which he certainly had a good trump suit. Although he lost one trump trick, it was the only one his opponents took, whereas the heart declarers were miserable after a spade was led.

Tomorrow's Problem.



Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Upon winning the third spade trick, how should South play this hand for an extra trick at 3-No Trumps, if East during the bidding had made a club overcall?

HITLER LOSES TOUCH WITH THE NAZI MASSES

Correspondent Reports Recent Speeches of Der Fuehrer Depress His People.

(Editor's Note: Just returned to this country after five months internment by the Germans at Bad Nauheim, Louis P. Lochner, former chief of the Berlin bureau of Wide World is writing a series of stories for The News-Journal in which he reveals many facts about Germany's present leaders and the situation within the country.)

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Adolf Hitler, for almost 20 years a master psychologist at sensing what the masses want to hear and what they are prepared to accept in the way of burdens and deprivations, has shown definite signs of late of failing to fathom public sentiment correctly.

In consequence, his unexampled hold upon the masses is gradually slipping.

The most recent case in point is his Reichstag speech of April 26.

Thoughtful Germans still are asking themselves: How could Hitler at the end of a terrible winter, which took a severe toll of German life at the Russian front, inaugurate spring by telling the nation that next winter better transportation would be provided in the east? Why not see first how the summer offensive turns out and reserve talk about the next winter until then?

We who heard the speech on our secret radio during the final days of our internment at Bad Nauheim noted the depressing effect upon the German hotel personnel.

American businessmen who joined us on the S. S. Drottningholm directly from Berlin told us: "A few more such speeches and the masses are through with Hitler. They don't want to hear of another winter of war."

They said the depressing effect upon the population of the capital was tremendous.

Aboard the Drottningholm I heard an elderly lady, a refugee and obviously from Wurttemberg judging by her dialect, discuss the war with an old man whose speech indicated he came from East Prussia.

"The war simply must end this summer," the elderly woman said. "All the men from the front who come home on furlough tell us it is so terrible out east that they won't have another winter of it."

"Yes, that's the way we feel up our way," nodded the East Prussian.

Adolf Hitler's declaration of war upon the United States showed a similar misgauging of the psychology of the masses.

How explain Hitler's obvious weakening in psychological understanding?

There was a time when Hitler's sensibility in feeling out his way with the crowds was nothing short of uncanny.

Invariably I was impressed with Der Fuehrer's ability to be all things unto all men. Hitler played with his audiences as an orchestra conductor plays with the members of his musical ensemble.

His meetings often reminded one of the old revival meetings. Even the most hard-boiled seemed to "get religion"; i. e., the Nazi religion of blood and soil.

After Hitler became chancellor and later chief of state, he could seldom extemporize but had to read important pronouncements from prepared copy.

Yet these speeches, too, during the first six or seven years of his dictatorship showed a remarkable psychological understanding of the German people.

That was some years ago. Today his speeches don't have the same compelling power with his hearers.

The explanation seems to lie in the fact that Adolf Hitler now lives in a cloud-world of his own, high up on Mt. Olympus, and that his contacts with the real world are carefully filtered by the coterie of confidants about him.

These underlings permit Hitler to hear only what they think he should hear.

Hitler has become more and more unapproachable by the rank and file of the people and even by the rank and file of his faithful party members.

The masses naturally are quick to sense this. There is no longer that spontaneous enthusiasm which characterized the reaction of the crowds during the first years of the Hitler regime.

Every Service Man Boosts U. S. O., This Soldier Says

Private Edwin Sutton, who is home on a 60-day leave awaiting call as a flying cadet, is certain Richland county will raise its $22,000 U. S. O. quota in the campaign which is under way this week.

"Every fellow in service, soldier, marine or any other branch of the service, is a booster for the U. S. O.," he said today. "And most of the fellows write home to their parents from U. S. O. club rooms. If the parents of every man in service contributed to the fund, you'd have a big part of your goal, wouldn't you?

"I was down in Georgia first and then was transferred to Fort Lewis, which is near Tacoma, Wash. On the way up to Fort Lewis from the south, U. S. O. workers got on the train at almost every city of any size at all and passed out free cookies and cigarets. And then when we got into our new camp, we were welcomed to the U. S. O. clubhouse and service club units near the fort.

"They have dances for us and all kinds of recreational facilities when we are off duty. Why, it's about the only place we have to go, unless a fellow has money enough to go on into Tacoma.

"I've never heard anyone gripe about anything at the U. S. O.

"Yes, I think it would be great to have a club room here in Mansfield and in addition to that it would be mighty nice if you had women to meet the transport buses and welcome the fellows who go through town. A lot of the fellows are pretty homesick until after they get used to camp life."

EDWIN SUTTON

Private Sutton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sutton, 231 South Franklin avenue. He was formerly attached to the 146th Infantry, 41st Division. He is scheduled to return to service June 18.

NAVY RELIEF SOCIETY LIKE PORT IN STORM, SAYS OFFICER

"The Navy Relief society is like a port in a storm to any sailor."

That's what Chief Petty Officer Charles Scholtz, jr., recruiting officer at the Mansfield naval recruiting station in the Mansfield postoffice thinks.

Scholtz knows what he's talking about, too, because in the 16 years he has been in the Navy, he's seen scores of his fellow-sailors, marines and coastguardsmen helped by the relief unit.

A Mansfield and Richland county citizens' committee is at present attempting to raise $6,300 as its share of $5,000,000 being collected nationally to aid the dependents of naval men lost or injured. Harry S. Black, vice president of the Ohio Brass company, is serving as chairman of the committee.

"I've seen it help sailors in countless cases," says Scholtz. "When a sailor is at sea and his family is unable to get its allotment of his pay, the relief society steps in and helps them until he returns. If he never returns, the society investigates the case and if it is learned that the pension given them is not quite enough for their needs, the society supplements it."

Scholtz can remember several times when the relatives of a fellow-sailor underwent operations with the relief society paying all the bills. The sailors pay back the bills to the society in small payments without interest.

If at any time an emergency arises among the dependents, according to Scholtz, the Navy Relief society loans the sailors money to help meet it.

"Of course money isn't loaned just for financial ventures or ordinary purchases," says Scholtz. "Each case has to be a worthy one."

Named President As M. H. S. Class Of 1917 Meets

Dr. Paul Maxwell was elected alumni chairman by the Mansfield high school class of 1917 when 90 representatives of the class and their families met here recently for the 25th reunion at John Simpson Junior high school.

Dr. Maxwell succeeds Capt. Glenn L. Bierly who headed arrangements this year. He will be in charge of plans for the next convention five years hence in May, 1947.

Approximately 50 members of the 1917 class of 150 attended the reunion which brought visitors here from Cleveland, Lima and other cities. Miss Madge Cotton and A. N. Carmine of Cleveland, both former Mansfield teachers, were present.

Bierly was assisted with the local arrangements by Mrs. Clara Rust, Mrs. Rhea Rondell, Mrs. Ethel Senert, Mrs. Earl Troll, Fred Ohler and Arquette Rust.

BERGEN DONATES 9 SCHOLARSHIPS

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— An Edgar Bergen scholarship fund of nine $200 awards has been set up for the Northwestern University School of Speech.

Dean Ralph Dennis said that Bergen, creator of Charlie McCarthy and a former Northwestern student, had provided funds for students in the United States showing promise as playwrights, radio script writers, and radio and stage actors.

Artists Face No Present Threat Of Censorship

BOSTON — (INS) — Among its numerous duties since it became an integral part of the navy, Coast Guard headquarters has been flooded with inquiries from artists who want to know if there is going to be an art bureau of censorship.

There may be one, but coast guardsmen refuse to branch out into the field of art. Painters may continue to paint at Rockport, Mass., and other famous colonies of the painted picture, and sketchers may continue to sketch, just as they did in peacetime, so long as they confine their activities to non-military scenes.

If the artists oblige, it will please the guardsmen very much, they say.

Cologne! Essen! and after that?

Some twenty-one years ago the late General Gulio Douhet, one time head of Italy's military aviation, advanced a theory which has come to bear his name—that a nation could be forced to surrender in 48 hours through systematic destruction of its cities by waves of enemy bombers. Indeed, he gave a hypothetical picture of France and Belgium being plowed under in two days by a mighty German air offensive.

Douhet's idea was that as city after city fell, the morale of the population would go to pieces, and the government would lose all control.

During the frightful months of August and September two years ago, after the collapse of France, it looked as though Hitler was going to demonstrate in large degree the Douhet theory. Horrible death and devastation poured from the clouds until it seemed that the tortured nerves of the people of Britain could stand no more. But they turned their brave faces to the skies and defied the enemy.

It seemed that Hitler had shown us the limit of bombing possibilities. But two years have brought great changes, and we now see far more powerful air fleets carrying to German cities the catastrophe of which Douhet dreamed.

A huge portion of the ancient Rhenish city of Cologne lies in Ruins. The neighboring city of Essen, with its vast Krupp armament works, has undergone a similar experience, and Hitler's main source of munitions has been given a terrific blasting.

And this is only the beginning of a systematic destruction of German cities, one by one. British Premier Churchill has promised that.

To what ends will such striking-power carry the Allies? We should regard with reserve predictions that the Anglo-American air forces can reduce the Germans to impotency without the necessity of opening a second land front in western Europe.

Will German people stand this new terror? Time alone will tell.

We do know the Nazi chief is being dealt a fierce and perhaps irreparable blow. We lack details about Krupps, but the loss of any considerable portion of this mainstay of German arms would be a major disaster for the Nazis.

If the Allies are able to continue this great aerial offensive, the German armies soon will feel the pinch of lack of supplies. That will be a heavy setback at a moment when Hitler wants every ounce of strength to try for a decision this summer—likely his last chance.

ADMITS HE GOT $200 A MONTH AS NAZI SPY

Dr. Hans Gros Says Heydrich Instructed Him to Start Sabotage, Strikes.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Minneapolis-born Dr. Hans Helmut Gros admitted in a purported confession read at his federal court trial that he was employed at $200 a month, plus a 20,000-mark bonus, as a German intelligence agent with the rank of captain.

But he declared he never worked very hard at the job.

Dr. Gros said in the confession that the recently wounded Reinhard Heydrich, No. 2 man of the German gestapo and his former schoolmate in Saxonia, had instructed him to:

"Organize sabotage, the blowing up of ships, industrial plants and such things.

"Take photographs of harbors and military objectives.

"Furnish information on persons who might be contacted to create strikes."

But he had no intention of doing any of these things, Dr. Gros said, and sent only newspaper clippings about strikes, unemployment, and airplane production, information such as would be available through German newspapers and magazines.

Dr. Gros, his wife, Frances, 31, and Albrecht Rudolf Curt Reuter, 56, German-born Beverly Hills art dealer, are charged with failure to register as German agents and conspiring to transmit to Germany information concerning national defense preparations.

Mrs. Gros said in a purported statement read in court that before they were married Dr. Gros told her she could earn $200 a month for one to five hours' work a week clipping articles about U. S. military and naval affairs, airplane production, ship sailings and compiling lists of key defense positions in California.

She said Dr. Gros told her he not only had aided the Nazis in obtaining control of Germany, but once had posed as a French military officer to carry money to German spies in Paris, posed as a priest on a similar mission in Poland, and was dropped by parachute to deliver a message to Nazi agents there.

Up and Down the Street

Mansfield poets are exhibiting their work in the special display case of the Mansfield Public library and the poems include both the published and unpublished works of local persons. The poets were recently organized by Mrs. Helen Loomis Linham and many of the works represented in the exhibit were written by Mrs. Linham. Other poems exhibited were composed by Verda R. Barr, Mary Ellen Bechtel, May Wilkinson, Maude F. Miller and Mary Gilkinson Myers.

A time-worn copy of the old Mansfield News, dated nearly 50 years ago, provided interesting reading to Mrs. Jacob Erndt, sr., 531 Daisy street, today, when she found the newspaper in the back of an old picture frame. The edition, dated May 3, 1895, carried a foreign story to the effect that Russia was ready to begin hostilities in the event Japan refused to modify terms of a peace treaty with China and it also gave considerable space to a threatening nation-wide coal strike.

Winning contests is getting to be a habit with Rev. G. E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church. Two weeks age he won first prize in a contest sponsored by the Mansfield poetry club on his poem, "Lincoln at Gettysburg." Today he received word that he had won first prize — a $25 war savings bond from among the 600 entries in a nation-wide essay contest sponsored by "The Pulpit Digest," inter-denominational ministers' publication. His 1,500-word essay on "The Place of the Church In Winning the War and the Peace," was the "overwhelming choice" of the judges, Rev. Swoyer was notified.

A claim covering the loss of 31 sheep killed or injured recently by dogs on the Earle G. White farm in Cass township cost the county $318, the largest amount paid on a single claim in several years. County commissioners today had approved the sheep claims totaling $518 for last month. There were 11 claims, ranging from $5 to White's $318 loss. The month's total was the highest of the year.

HOUSE GROUP ELIMINATES CCC FUNDS

Continues NYA in Putting O. K. on Labor, Security Divisions Measure.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house appropriations committee approved today a $1,058,451,660 bill for the labor department, the social security board and related agencies after eliminating a $75,818,000 fund for the civilian conservation corps. Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the committee said the members voted 15 to 12 to end the CCC program on a motion by Rep. Engel (R-Mich.).

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The house appropriations committee today considered a $1,134,269,660 appropriation bill to operate the labor department and the federal security agency for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The bill included funds to continue the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration on a reduced basis for another year.

The amount was $126,769,830 below the appropriation voted for the same purposes for the current fiscal year.

The major cuts came in the CCC and NYA funds. CCC will receive $75,818,000 in fiscal 1943 to maintain 350 camps compared with $246,960,000 this year. NYA will receive the administration's request for $53,049,000 plus $5,000,000 to continue NYA aid to college students. The NYA received $151,767,000 this year.

Highlights of testimony on the appropriation requests released at the same time the bill was reported include:

1. The labor department's division of public contracts found "shockingly unsanitary conditions" in a large cannery that was preparing food for the army. Cockroaches in the apple jelly and leaky sewage pipes over work benches were reported.

2. The office of education warned congress that the public school system is in grave danger of collapsing because of the tremendous financial and personnel demands of the war effort.

3. The U. S. public health service is getting ready to fight bubonic plague which is threatening to spread eastward from Rocky Mountain states where some persons are infected annually by ground squirrels. It reported that the number of cases of venereal diseases are "leveling off"—that 57,000 of each 1,000,000 men examined for military service still are rejected because of it.

4. Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt revealed that President Roosevelt may ask congress to federalize the unemployment compensation system.

The bill as approved by the appropriations committee carried $141,240,000 to be used for training workers for war jobs. The funds will be distributed by the office of education and the NYA.

The committee again cut the requested appropriation for enforcement of the wage-hour law and criticized the division for not carrying out the wishes it expressed on wage-hour enforcement in last year's appropriation.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

What It Takes.

"He's got what it takes!" "Wow! Has she got what it takes!"

We hear and say these lines a lot, don't we, often without giving them a second thought. So here's a second thought.

The top of the ladder is filled with those who have what it takes.

Kilgallen

There may be some further down, but they're moving up rung by rung. And there may be some fakes on top, too, but they slip back into place wrong by wrong. I'd like to illustrate my little lecture for today with that colorful street of hard knocks called Broadway.

What does it take to get on top on Broadway? Ability? Certainly. Nerve? Yes. Perseverance? Yes. And luck. And a "break." Youth and energy and ambition are always important ingredients. Material and style are among the tangible assets. Beauty sometimes. Brains always. Character, consideration, kindness and appreciation. Cooperation, helpfulness. Courage, bravery, patience. And a little impatience, too.

Eddie Cantor's eyes and his Ida have been his trade mark for years, but I think most of all it's Eddie Cantor's goodness and generosity that have kept him up there all this time. . . . Ethel Mermen's being a goodspirited regular fellow means more in the long run than her giving those saucy entendres to a Porter lyric. . . . Sophie Tucker knows how to sing "Some of These Days" better than anybody else in this world, but you should remember, too, that she can make as many friends as anybody else in this world.

Style, I said, is an attribute. Success is the whining saxophones of Guy Lombardo, the familiar keyboard touch of Eddy Duchin, the zing of The Bing. . . . It's the formula of the Music Hall stage spectacles, the hep-hep-hurray harmonies of the Andrews Sisters, the Ink Spots, the Merry Macs. . . . It's the sentimental swing of Thomas Dorsey and the celestial jive of Harry James' trumpet. . . . It's Jack Benny's Rochester gags and the Jessel and Berle boys' mothers. . . . It's Mary Martin still being true to Daddy.

It takes style and it also takes material. When Danny Kaye jabbers along with his "Melody in 4F," you just know that there's a boy who's got what it takes. There are others whose lines wow you. Joe E. Lewis, for instance, being so sorry for February because it's shorter than the other months. The now-retired Joe Cook and his Four Hawaiians had a style. So have Bob Hope with his unending string of comical nonsense, Gertrude Lawrence going to town with "Jenny" and Gracie Allen going on and on with silly but wonderful little nothings. So has Lucy Monroe singing the national anthem so often you get surprised when someone else starts to sing it.

So much for those on top. What about those who are plugging away night and day to be a second Cantor or Benny or Helen Hayes or Merman or Pons—or Margie Hart? A certain few of them must have what it takes. Next year or maybe the year after or maybe even ten years from now they'll have gotten up there.

Why will they? One girl will because she takes dancing lessons five days a week and goes home every night and practices in front of the mirror five nights a week. You'll be hearing about her. Then there's the actress who hasn't gotten her first job yet. But she's good. Very good. And she's sweet and generous. There are three other girls who want to be actresses, though they never will be, living in her apartment with her—and on her. And there's Freddie W. He's going to be a great comedian some day. He listens to all the radio programs, studies technique, and he's got a personality that wraps its arm around you. Freddie is diligent to the point of overwork, but a sponsor is going to be gloating over finding him some time soon.

IN STALEMATE

Myers Company Workers at Ashland Still Off Job.

ASHLAND—Officials and office employes of the F. E. Myers & Bros. company, which is engaged in war work, returned to work today but 650 plant workers remained idle pending negotiation of a contract to replace one that expired May 31.

Striking plant workers had patrolled the works and had refused to permit officials and office employes, except those granted passes by union officials, to enter the factory.

Under an agreement, negotiated by Federal Labor Conciliator Dan Hurley, officials and office workers were permitted to return to their jobs and provision was made for protection of plant property during the work stoppage.

The strike was called Monday by the Machinists and Molders union, an AFL affiliate, which demanded a new contract.

CAMERON RITES TO BE SATURDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. John Cameron, former Mansfield resident, who died unexpectedly Monday in Tampa, Fla., will be conducted at 2:30 p. m., Saturday, at the Finefrock Funeral home. Rev. Elwyn Owen, pastor of the Mayflower Congregational church, will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

The former Elstachia Clark, she lived in Mansfield her entire life until moving to Florida a year ago. She was a member of the Mayflower Congregational church and was an employe of the Ohio Brass company for 23 years.

Surviving are her husband; her mother, Mrs. Mary Clark and one brother, Eugene Clark, both of Mansfield.

ENSIGN TELLS OF PLANE CRASH

Remembers Only Few Details of Accident That Killed Seven Companions.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—Naval authorities today questioned Ensign G. H. Apitz of Henderson, Minn., sole survivor of a naval plane crash on the San Francisco peninsula Monday night that took the lives of his seven companions including Richard Cowan Viall, seaman second class, Dayton, O.

The PBY Catalina flying boat failed by 100 feet to clear a ridge four miles off Pillar Point in the foothills north of Half Moon bay. Wreckage was strewn for 200 yards through the brush. Apitz, suffering several facial burns and lacerations, was thrown clear.

"We were returning to the base (at nearby Alameda) when we hit some turbulent air," he said. "I don't remember much about the crash itself. I don't know how I got out. I remember trying to crawl over something. I made it the second time. After a while I tried to smoke a cigaret but couldn't and threw it away."

Apitz hiked six miles through the darkness to summon aid and his superiors marvelled at his fortitude in fighting his way through dense underbrush in his weakened condition. Apitz said he knocked at the doors of two houses, but there was no response. Finally he came to a store and telephoned the Alameda air station.

ESCAPE FROM DAIRY AT O. S. R.

Walk Away From Barm at Institution, Glattke Says.

Escape of two Ohio State Reformatory inmates by walking away from the institution's dairy barn was reported today by Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke.

Andy Botos, 22, who entered the reformatory Oct. 24, 1939, from Butler county, to serve one to five years for breaking and entering, escaped yesterday noon, Glattke said, and Robert Herman, 19, made his getaway during the night.

Herman entered the reformatory last Oct. 31, from Hancock county, to serve one to 20 years for auto stealing.

BOY, 15, WILL FACE TRIAL IN KIDNAP DEATH OF BABY GIRL

MARQUETTE, Mich. — (INS) — Ross Heath, 15 years old and the son of a former circus giantess, was held under $25,000 bond today to stand trial in the kidnaping and death of two-months old Gloria Jean Nault.

The Chicago youth, who police said confessed that he stole the infant "to get a little extra dough" through ransom, was arraigned yesterday on kidnaping charges and a not guilty plea was entered before Circuit Judge Frank A. Bell. Trial was set for the court's September term which begins Sept. 14.

In his alleged confession, Heath insisted the baby girl was accidentally killed when he tripped and fell on her as he ran from the car in which her parents had left her sleeping.

The nude and bruised body of the infant was found Sunday midnight in a truck cab, a quarter of a mile from the car left parked by the parents in front of a tavern at New Swanzy.

Heath said the child's accidental death forced him to abandon his ransom plans, he tore her clothes off "to fool police." He denied any sex interest in the child, police said.

Mrs. Ruth Heath, a former circus performer who is six feet, four inches tall, refused to consent to the waiving of preliminary examination for her son until she was shown his signed statement. Mrs. Heath said she is now employed in a Chicago war plant.

DENIES APPEAL

Supreme Court Gives Decision In Bucyrus Death Suit.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The Ohio supreme court today denied a widow's allowance to the estate of Mrs. Sallie Metzger of Bucyrus on the ground that she died within three days of her husband and that the estate was not entitled to the statutory allowance.

Peter Metzger and his wife were killed in an automobile accident on Oct. 1, 1937. He was killed instantly and she died two or three hours later. There were no children. Mrs. Metzger's administrator asked the probate court to grant a widow's allowance and property not deemed assets out of the husband's estate on the ground that she survived him.

The supreme court reversed the court of appeals, holding that where a wife dies within three days of her husband, or within 30 days from his death where their deaths are due to a common accident, there is no widow and none of the usual statutory allowance can be set off for the benefit of her estate.

BRIEF ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

Homer Power, 79, Succumbs At General Hospital.

Homer Power, 79, who made his home at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' home in Sandusky, died yesterday at General hospital after a brief illness.

He was a Spanish American war veteran. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Emma Power, and one daughter, Mrs. Florence Ryan, both of Dayton.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home and later to Dayton for funeral services and burial.

ARREST EVADERS

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Large scale raids designed to bring an estimated 700 draft delinquents to justice will continue, federal authorities said today. Six arrests were made in Columbus alone yesterday in the first of the raids.

Commencement ceremonies will follow a series of pre-graduation events starting Friday, June 5, when the class attends holy hour at 7:30 p. m. in the church. Msgr. R. C. Goebel will bless the class rings the following Sunday, June 7, at 3 p. m. when the ceremony, Blessing of the Rings, is held.

The class will attend the 8 a. m. mass Sunday and again graduation day morning at the same hour.

Tuesday, June 9, the graduates will hold class night exercises in the church.

Strike Threatens To Choke Firm's Steel Production

YOUNGSTOWN — (U.P.) — Two hundred striking scarfers and chippers at the Campbell plants of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company stayed away from their jobs today in an unauthorized strike that threatened to halt the company's entire production of steel.

A number of workers walked out late Monday in protest against a new wage scale but the strike was not announced until yesterday when scarfers and chippers joined the strikers.

A company official said scarfing and chipping of steel was "highly important" and predicted that stoppage of the process "soon may choke production all along the line."

James C. Quinn, subregional director of the United Steel Workers union, said the strike was unauthorized and that "attempts are being made" to induce the men to go back to work.

"You know something?" quizzed Harry Mehock with the air of a guy who did.

"This is the first time in 16 years that Mansfield high school has had championship teams in all three sports, football, basketball and track.

"We did it 16 years ago, my first year here, and now we do'd it again. It took a long time for the talent cycle to come our way again.

"I'll never forget," says the Mansfield athletic director, "the day I first got off a train in Mansfield and started that ride up the hill.

"I was all full of that young ambition stuff, and bothered not at all by worry over what the fates had in store. And I proclaimed boldly: 'We'll win everything there is to win.'

"And we did win everything, but it took me 16 years to find out how fortunate we were. These things don't happen every year.

"We tied with Shelby for the N. C. O. league football championship that year, won the N. C. O. basketball title, then dropped the district tourney, but went on to win the sectional and went to the state tourney. And we won the district track title.

"Since then we've had our share of championships in all three sports but this year is the first time we've been able to put all three together again.

"It took that great bunch of boys we've got graduating this week to do it."

It's an old coaching axiom that the best coach has to have the material or he is just another coach. And it's also true that every once in a great while a bunch of athletes grow up together and fit into their team positions as though they'd been meant that way from the cradle.

Tyger Grid Coach Paul Snyder ran into such a group of athletes at New London, and he had it again last fall at Mansfield high school, and there were a good many years between.

But neither Mehock nor Snyder, nor Cage Coach Vern Hoffman are worrying about the years they'll have to wait until they find another group of athletes like that. They believe Mansfield's junior high system will take care of that. The Tygers may be down a bit next year, but they're due to bob back up in the following two.

Snyder has his own way of looking at a track meet.

"Did you see where that Zellers kid from Appleseed ran the hundred in 10.6?" he asked.

"Yes," I responded, "and did you see where that Bauer kid from Simpson did it in 10.4?"

"But he isn't a football player," retorted Snyder.

Si Johnson Blanks Reds

Whitewashes Ex-Mates With Only Five Hits.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Cincinnati must trim Philadelphia tonight for an even break in a two-game series with the last placers —all because ol' Si Johnson whitewashed the Redlegs yesterday

Johnson allowed his former Redleg teammates only five hits in 10 innings in beating Elmer Riddle, 1-0. Max Marshall was the only Redleg to reach second, making it on a single and sacrifice in the ninth, but then Joe Abreau hit into a double play.

* * *

Rookie Abreau, substituting at third for Bert Haas who took injured Frank McCormick's place at first, was the "goat" in a heartbreaking loss for Riddle. Abreau fumbled Alvin Glossop's sacrifice after Danny Litwhiler opened the tenth by beating out a hit to deep short. Litwhiler advanced on Rookie Ron Northey's single off Lonnie Frey's glove, held third while Bobby Bragan popped, then scored on Tommy Livingston's fly.

Riddle, like Johnson, turned in a five-hit job for his best performance of the year.

Paul Derringer for the Reds and Rube Melton for the Phils are tonight's probable pitchers.

Frankie Yearns For Radio

So Writer Suspects After Seeing Pirates.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

IF THERE are ever times that Frank (Onkel Franz) Frisch yearns to return to radio announcing today must be one of them.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who started the season in splendor, have become more futile and pathetic than even the Philadelphia Phils, who haven't been out of the National league cellar since the first day of the campaign.

Pittsburgh has lost ten consecutive games and 16 of its last 18 and was humiliated yesterday by the worst thrashing of the season in the senior circuit —17 to 2 by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rookie Les Webber made it more humiliating than ever, giving Pittsburgh only five hits. Pete Reiser got five hits in five trips for the Dodgers.

There were two other five-hit pitching performances in the National league yesterday—thrown against each other by old Si Johnson and young Elmer Riddle in a 10-inning duel which the Phils took from the Cincinnati Reds 1-0.

Hal Schumacher, who hadn't won a game since April 23, kept nine hits scattered at Chicago and the New York Giants beat the Cubs 5-1.

John Beazley, young relief hurler for the St. Louis Cardinals, did a spectacular job to save a 4 to 3 decision over the Boston Braves for Mort Cooper. Cooper weakened in the ninth and permitted Sibby Sisti to triple a pair of runs home with only one out. Beazley trudged in from the bull pen to retire the side.

Mel Harder stepped into the breach for the Cleveland Indians at Boston by holding the Red Sockers to six hits and winning 7-2. The Tribe has been in a sticky slump, losing nine of their last 11 games.

* * *

Two great pitching performances were turned in under the lights with Early Wynn, Washington youngster, stopping the St. Louis Browns 4 to 1, and Virgil (Fire) Trucks of the Tigers applying the first coat of whitewash to the Athletics this season, 3-0.

Racers Return To Ashland

Midgets Keep Former Date Spoiled By Rain.

ASHLAND—Thwarted by bad weather Decoration Day, auto racing stars from coast to coast will return Sunday afternoon (June 7) to stage their Ohio mid-season championships program on the beautiful half-mile Ashland county fairgrounds track.

* * *

Seven events will make up the speed program bringing to Ashland for the first time the big names of the dirt track world including several sectional champions and their sleek racing creations valued at over $32,000.

Among the entries who will roar around the half-mile fairgrounds track are three members of last year's 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day field, Iron Duke Nalon of Chicago; Paul Russo of Kenosha; and Mel Hanson of Los Angeles. Also returning will be the former world record holder for 50-miles on semi-banked speedways, Johnny Wohlfeil of Detroit; Deb Snyder of Kent; Michigan Champion Duane Carter of Los Angeles; and his fellow-townsman, Roy Sherman; Wild Bill Boyd of Steubenville, Ohio's banked track champion, Mike Little of Johnstown, Pa.; Elmo Green of Phoenix, Ariz., and other stars.

The seven race card will start promptly at 3 p. m. with a Victory Dash event for the four fastest qualifying cars of the afternoon. Five elimination races and the feature event, starting a field of ten cars, will complete the program.

Dubious Welcome Accorded Shute

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Denny Shute, renowned pro linkster, was just a bit dubious today about the "welcome home" celebration accorded him by a trio of Columbus golfers.

The three amateurs ganged up on him is a best ball match in which he took medal honors but got the thumping of his life despite that.

The trio of pay-to-play clubswingers combined their best ball score to pour a 6 to 5 trimming on the former P. G. A. and British open crown-bearer. Allen Rankin, Scioto club champion; Bobby Campbell, recent winner of the district Hale America crown and Johnny Lorms, a member of Ohio State university's varsity links team, comprised the victorious contingent.

So complete was the subjugation of Shute that he failed to win a single hole, and rounded the first turn six down.

Although seemingly outclassed by his lesser foes, Shute was out in 39 and back in sub-par 34 to card 73 to take medal honors going away. Rankin stood next with 77. Campbell and Lorms followed with 79 and 80 respectively.

A-LEAGUERS PLAY MATCHES ON FRIDAY

News-Journal A-league golfers were on hand for their matches at Possum Run last evening, but they didn't play. They knew enough to stay in out of the rain.

So last night's washed-out schedule was postponed until Friday night of this week.

Record Gallery Seen for Event

One of Largest Crowds In Golf History Looms.

NEW YORK—(INS)—One of the biggest crowds in the recent history of golf is expected to run up and down each other's spines during the Hale America open at Chicago, June 18-21, and those onlookers might as well be warned now to wear helmets. Aside from the man-handling they will receive from each other in stampeding the course, some of them may learn suddenly that a golf ball coming into contact with a skull can be a painful and annoying thing.

Golf galleries notoriously have no regard whatever for life or limb. They will tussle and scramble against each other, sweating and wheezing their way around the course, and more often than not finally wind up where they can see everything but also where a shot can conk them with a resounding thump, as it comes whistling down the fairway to land with the force of a .45.

The professionals are so sure of their aim that all they need is a little alley between the lined up spectators, but even these gentlemen who make a living out of putting a golf ball where they want it to come hook or slice occasionally, or pull or push one off line. When they do, Butch, you'd better duck.

At Atlantic City last week two onlookers were hit on the head and these incidents not only proved the wisdom of keeping your noggin out of the way, but also had a possible vital effect on Sam Snead's victory in the National Professional championship. The shots helped him in his matches with Ed Dudley and Corp. Jim Turnesa, the latter encounter being the final.

Newman Wins League Title

Pritchard Turns In Four-Hit Victory.

Newman school won the Mansfield grade school softball league championship yesterday, defeating Bowman 6-2 in a play-off between the only two undefeated teams in the league.

Eldon Pritchard let Bowman down with four hits, while his Newman mates were collecting nine off Reynolds.

Bowman scored both of its runs in the first inning and Newman waited until the fourth to tie the score, and then won out in the fifth

Brewers Set Night Record

Draw 9,267 Customers For Season's Mark.

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee turned on the lights in its American Association park for the first time in 1942 last night and the turnstiles tallied a turnout of 9,267, which the Brewers said was the largest for any night game in the circuit this year. They saw Harry Griswold, reserve catcher, snap out of a batting slump to clout two singles and a home run in leading the league-leaders to a 7-3 win over Columbus.

* * *

Kansas City beat Toledo twice, 2-1 and 8-0, to gain a half game on first-place Milwaukee. Rugger Ardizola pitched a one-hitter in the nightcap.

Minneapolis and Louisville divided last night's twilight doubleheader, Louisville winning the first, 5-4, and the Millers the second by the same score.

Way down in the cellar, Indianapolis took a double-header from St. Paul, 3-1 and 4-3.

FINALLY GETS IT

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—(INS)—Belated recognition has come, to Mayor Carl F. Zeidler of Milwaukee. Fifteen years ago a freshman half-miler at Marquette university, but never a varsity performer, Mayor Zeidler has just received his varsity "M" blanket by the Marquette athletic board. He received the honor just before leaving for Boston, Mass., to go into active service as a lieutenant in the Naval Reserves.

NEW YORK — Wide World— The average baseball manager just can't keep from talking back to an umpire. And so, with tighter rules in effect this season, there's likely to be an all-time high total of pilots ejected from ball games.

Chief reason is that the National league now prohibits managers from protesting ball-and-strike decisions. The pitcher or the catcher may still offer their frank, sultry and somewhat partial opinions of an arbiter's ruling but the skippers can't enter the debate.

And that's tough on the bench bosses. For some of them have been accustomed to rush out to the plate and light into the man-in-blue when their twirlers so much as frowned at a verdict. A lot of them are likely to be sent to the showers several times before they can remember the new rule and restrain themselves.

Whenever rules are made some people find, or try to find, ways to evade them. Leo the Lip Durocher of the Dodgers thought he could get around this fresh edict by expressing his opinion to his catcher within easy earshot of the umpire. He did, once, but the umps are on to him now.

During recent years Durocher, Frankie Frisch of the Pirates and Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox have been perhaps the most outspoken of the pilots. And they have been ordered off the field more often than most other managers.

At this writing Frisch is again out front. Frankie held himself under control until the last day of April. Then early in May he got thumbed out again. Tied with Frisch in the thumbed-out derby is Jimmy Wilson of the Cubs. He got an early jump on the others for Arbiter Al Barlick booted him out on opening day and he was ejected again later. No other pilot has been tossed out more than once.

Although Durocher had a run-in with an umpire during the exhibition schedule, he managed to stay clear of the law this season until early in May.

Despite the unexpectedly poor showing of his White Sox the fiery Mr. Dykes also kept himself under control for nearly a month before he got the gate.

Hans Lobert of the Phils, Billy Southworth of the Cards and Mel Ott of the Giants also have been sent to the showers once. It was the fourth time in his 16-year major league career for the soft-spoken Ott.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—The U. S. Golf association, which drew a lot of criticism for its hasty cancellation of the open and amateur championships, seems to be making a great come-back with the Hale America open tournament. . . . The sectional qualifying rounds this week-end will take in virtually all the top-ranking pros and amateurs available and the ones who don't have to qualify will play exhibitions anyway. . . . About the only important names we can think of that will be missing are Sam Snead, Porky Oliver, Bud Ward, Willie Turnesa, Charlie Yates and Johnny Fisher, who will be too busy with their army and navy duties. . . . Corp. Jim Turnesa, the army's No. 1 golfer right now, tells why his putting was so hot during the P. G. A. tournament—because he didn't have much chance to practice anything else.

73 Compete In Cincy Tourney

Attempt to Qualify For Hale America Joust.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Seventy-three golfers from five states—43 of them from Ohio—are entered in the Hale America open golf tournament sectional at Kenwood Country club here Saturday and Sunday.

Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, and part of Pennsylvania have entrants among the 38 professionals and 35 amateurs who will tee off Saturday afternoon in an 18-hole round to be followed by 36 holes of medal play Sunday.

Eight will qualify here for the national Hale America tournament at Chicago, June 28, while in a dozen other sectionals throughout the country more than 500 survivors of local tournaments last week will seek places among the 105 starters in the Chicago final.

In the absence of the national open championship, the Hale America tournament for the benefit of the Navy Relief society is shaping up as golfing's biggest event of the year.

Byron Nelson of Toledo, former national open champion and exempt from sectional qualifying, will be on hand here for exhibition rounds.

Ohio entrants included in pairings made yesterday were:

Cleveland—Theodore L. Huge, Tom Whiteway of Wickliffe, Billy Burke and John Malutic of Bedford.

Akron—Ed S. Kerby and Herman Keiser.

Toledo — Bob Sawhill, Marty Cromb, Marshall Carlson, W. M. Hankins, Ed Tasker, Tony Ruddy and James F. Lewis, jr.

Dayton — Ock Willoweit, Bob Servis and Tony Penna.

Cincinnati—Robert J. Strauss, R. P. Myers, Martin Dumler, jr., William J. Roach, Curtis E. Bryan, Dewitt W. Balch, Clay Gaddie, Bob Gutwein, Douglass W. Hill, George Gratwohl, Otto Hackbarth, Edward J. Foy, Frank Gelhot, B. J. Berning, Wally Chadnell, Art Smith, John Busemeyer and Thomas W. Earls.

Others—V. M. Forbrick of Fremont, Leonard Schmutte of Findlay, Lloyd Gullickson of Hartville, Verl Stinchcomb of Ashtabula, Jerry Burns of Hamilton, Robert Campbell of Granville, Reggie Myers of Columbia Station, Walter Powers of Swanton, Louis Chiapetta of Sylvania.

Twilight Tilts Fail to Draw

War Baby Dying of Malnutrition.

By SID MERCER

NEW YORK — (INS) — One of baseball's war babies—the misnamed "twilight" game is dying of malnutrition and soon will fade from the major league scene.

Those who sponsored the experiments for the purpose of determining whether late afternoon starts are preferable to those that send patrons home to early dinners now admit the big city baseball fan cannot be sold on the idea.

He would rather miss his baseball than dinner at his accustomed hour.

Attendance flops at several army and navy relief games started at a late hour have convinced Ford Frick, president of the National league, that twilight ball, even with extra exploitation, will not draw as well as games that start at 3 or 3:15.

"A baseball fan will sit out the second part of a double-header unless it interferes with his dinner plans," says the National league's head man, "but he won't wait until 4:30 or 5 o'clock to see one game. In other words, he doesn't care to waste so much time when he's out for an afternoon of recreation."

Clark Griffith blames the late starting time for the flop of the Washington game in which the Yankees and Nats played to a slim crowd. Somebody got the idea that government employes working until 4 o'clock on a Saturday, would go for a 5 o'clock game. They didn't.

The Phillies and Pirates coaxed out only 3,000 fans in their army-navy benefit game in Philadelphia. The late start was tried there, too.

Alva Bradley is experimenting with a 4 o'clock starting time in Cleveland. When the Yankees were there recently no rush of men in overalls from neighboring manufacturing plants to the ball park was noticed though the day shifts in Cleveland quit work at 3 o'clock.

Larry MacPhail still isn't sure twilight games will go in Brooklyn. The Dodgers have played two and in both the advance sale produced the bulk of the crowds. One was the Giant-Dodger game for the army and navy and the other was the Phillies, a switch from a night game for which there had been a big advance sale. The real test will come in Brooklyn when the attraction is ordinary and the advance sale is slow.

Real twilight games, starting at 6:30 during the months when daylight lasts until 9 o'clock or later, should provide a far better substitute for night ball than games that compete with the attractions of the dinner table.

Mel Harder Beats Red Sox

Tribe Scores First Victory Over Boston.

BOSTON—(AP)—Back in third place again, the Cleveland Indians polished their bats today for another hitting spree in Beantown.

Their collection of 14 safeties in a 7 to 2 triumph over the Red Sox here yesterday demolished thoughts that the Tribe never would beat the Boston jinx.

In their first victory over the Bosox in five weeks this season, Cleveland clubbed Boston into fourth place and moved the wigwam within a half game of Detroit, and eight games behind the league-leading Yankees. After completing a three-game series here tomorrow, the Indians move to New York for five contests against the world champions.

Every Indian got at least one hit yesterday to give Mel Harder his fourth victory against three defeats.

The 32-year-old Harder fanned five, walked one, and during the first eight frames permitted three hits while facing 25 batters, just one man over the absolute minimum.

FORMER MANSFIELD LIBRARIAN TURNS AUTHOR, BOOK PUBLISHED

Miss Mildred W. Sandoe, former librarian at the Mansfield Public library and now state library organizer with headquarters in Columbus, has turned author and her first book, "A Country Library Primer," has just been published.

Mansfield librarian from 1931 to 1936, Miss Sandoe has written the textbook in response to questions received from throughout the country asking Ohio's plan of library service. It is the first of its kind published since 1925 and includes various methods used by the Mansfield library.

Miss Sandoe's book gives the picture of Ohio's eight-year program to increase county-wide library service and is valuable to librarians, trustees and taxpayers interested in the methods of service designed to give the most service for the least cost.

The author has compiled the answers for librarians who want factual material about school collections, 'mail service, bookmobiles, branch service, staffing, financing and public relations. She has also developed her material so as to give the general layman a better understanding of library procedures and practices.

Miss Sandoe, a graduate of Simmons college, Boston, and a member of the State Library staff since 1935, was recently nominated for councilor for the extension division of the American Library association, national organization for libraries and librarians.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

Remember the Thumbs-Up Edition on Sunday, May 17th?

Here's an Important Announcement

The MANSFIELD NEWS-JOURNAL WILL PUBLISH PICTURES AND STORIES OF RICHLAND COUNTY SERVICE MEN

(OUTSIDE GREATER MANSFIELD)

In a Special "FLAG DAY" EDITION

SUNDAY, JUNE 14th

Read These Instructions For Sending In Pictures and Stories

1. For sending in pictures and information use the coupon which is printed as a part of this announcement. The pictures sent in should, if possible, be of recent date. To print satisfactorily, the picture should be in sharp focus with no shadows across the face. Glossy prints are preferred. Pictures sent in are returnable. (If The News-Journal has already used a picture of the service man in question, this may be indicated in the coupon and the picture can be taken from the file and used again.)

2. The information about service men in the June 14th "Flag Day" Edition must be provided on the coupon blank which appears (right) with this announcement. It is probable that your son, brother or friend has been mentioned frequently in The News-Journal's column about our "Neighbors In the Service." That material will be disregarded in the "Flag Day" Edition in the interest of providing only the very latest information on every service man. Thus the blank must be filled out and forwarded to The News-Journal at once.

3. The deadline for both pictures and information for the June 14th "Flag Day" Edition is Monday, June 8th.

4. Arrangements have been made at The Mansfield News-Journal to accommodate relatives and friends wishing to send the "Flag Day" Edition to men at camp or stations abroad. Simply call at The News-Journal office, Fourth and Walnut Streets.

Fill out this coupon blank and send to the Service Editor, Mansfield News-Journal at once. Deadline is Monday, June 8, 1942.

MANSFIELD NEWS-JOURNAL,
MANSFIELD, OHIO

MIXED TRENDS MARK DEALINGS IN STOCK LIST

Index of Power Production Rises to New High For This Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks displayed mixed trends in today's market dealings.

Minor fractional changes ruled generally in the leaders. Improved were United Aircraft, Goodrich, Consolidated Edison and International Nickel A shade lower were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Du Pont, General Electric and Eastman Kodak

Students of industrial trends noted a less than seasonal decline in electric power output for the week ended May 30.

The Edison Electric Institute reported energy distribution at 3,322,651,000 kilowatt hours compared with 3,379,985,000 the week before

Because of the unexpectedly small drop in power use the Associated Press index of production rose to a new 1942 high at 159.2 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 158 9 in the preceding period

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hear About Blood Banks—Burr M. Hathaway, pathologist at General hospital, will speak Thursday noon at a meeting of the Mansfield Kiwanis club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. His topic will be "Blood Banks." Dr. John S. Hattery is chairman of the program committee.

Parents of Daughter—Mr. and Mrs. G. Hoffman Calhoun of Lima, are the parents of a daughter born Monday, friends here learned today. Mrs. Calhoun is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Buesser, 158 West First street, and the father is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H Calhoun, 340 Park avenue west. Mrs Buesser returned recently from a trip to Washington.

Gets Committee Post— Harry G. Leight, 644 Arlington avenue, today had been named a member of the Richland county civilian defense committee to succeed Howard Hyatt of Pavonia, who recently resigned because his work takes him outside the county a large part of the time. The appointment was made by Ray Hout, chairman of the committee.

Driver Cited—Ruth Crouse, 50 South Adams street, was cited to appear in special traffic court this afternoon to answer charges of failure to stop after an accident. Mike Marvin, 296 Auburn street, reported to police that the woman drove away after her automobile collided with his car while it was parked on East Fifth street near the Newman street intersection
